Downtown businesses unite to fight the mall

By Don Staruk

The Andover Center Association is rallying the troops to market downtown Andover to new shoppers and to fend off an anticipated effort by the new Rockingham Mall, soon opening just over the border in New Hampshire, to draw away customers.

At an association meeting Wednesday morning, Lee Russem, owner of Russem's Ladies Apparel Shop and the business group's president; Sean Quinn, whose family owns the Strawberry Tree gift shop on Main Street; and Rosanna Zingales, manager of Daher's Shoes on Main Street, called for a unified promotional effort by local business owners.

The three presented the roughly 50 business owners at the meeting with a plan in which each business would contribute $50 a month for six months, a total of $300 each, to a downtown promotion fund. The money would be spent on various forms of "gener-

Businesses edging back to the downtown

By Don Staruk

At least two new businesses that are moving into the downtown next month and another current business that is expanding may be the sparks needed to ignite Andover's downtown.

More than half a dozen downtown businesses closed in the last year and a half, including Barcelos grocery and Scanlon Hardware. The feeling in the business community has been one of foreboding even though other stores, such as the Strawberry Tree, Andover Beauty Supply and Gary Kogon Gallery, have recently opened on Main Street.

But now more new businesses moving in to town and others expanding may indicate that business is on the upswing.

FBI arrests Salem Street resident

By Don Staruk

A Salem Street resident was arrested at his home Wednesday morning by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and charged with embezzlement of funds from Shawmut Bank in Boston.

Peter J. Regan, 49, of 72 Salem St. was arrested without incident by agents from the FBI's Boston office, according to a statement by the bureau.

Mr. Regan, who was a senior vice president of Shawmut Bank's loan division that works on bad loans, is charged with embezzlement and misapplication of federally insured funds. One published report said "several million dollars" were involved.

A hearing was scheduled in U.S. District Court in Boston Wednesday after the Townsmen went to press.

Mr. Regan is being charged with diverting funds associated with Shawmut Bank's bad loan work out arrangements to his personal accounts in Boston and Florida.

Mr. Regan was an employee at Shawmut

Jean deConstant, 65, a retired anesthesiologist, no longer tries to "doctor" himself the way he says many others in the medical profession do when they are ill. He now leaves those duties up to his physician and the nurses and other health-care professionals at the Visiting Nurse Association HomeCare Inc. They help him at his Marion Avenue home.

VNA HomeCare Inc., Merrimack Valley Hospice and Home-

Care Inc. are non-profit subsidiaries of the Home Health Foundation. The three agencies work together to provide health care at home for people recovering from illness and injury, the elderly and the disabled.

Patricia Rolfsema, of Andover, recently completed the advanced piano technology program at North Bennet Street school in Boston. Ms. Rolfsema will put her training to use in her own business doing repairs and tunings.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Curtis will celebrate their 66th wedding anniversary at the Academy Manor Nursing Home where Mrs. Curtis lives. The date is undecided because Mr. Curtis is in the hospital. Cake and refreshments will be served at their get together. The celebration will be attended by their daughter, their niece and their son-in-law.

Nora Mower, of 138 Elm St., is the proud grandmother of two babies born on the same day to her daughters, Judith Connors and Joyce Daniels.

Mrs. Connors gave birth to a 9 pound, 2 ounce girl named Kelsey Marie. She was born at 9:43 a.m., at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. Mrs. Daniels delivered a 9 pound, 1 ounce boy named Christopher Harlow at 1:06 p.m., at Lawrence General Hospital. The proud dads are John Connors and Rick Daniels.

Mrs. Connors and Mrs. Daniels had different due dates, but both ended up delivering on June 27.

Mrs. Mower is taking care of both her daughters at her home right now because they delivered by Caesarean section.

"I'm just being a good mother," she said. "I'm helping them with their daily chores."

Christopher's paternal grandmother is Doris Daniels. Dorothy Daniels and Fred Allen, of Canada, are his great-grandparents. Delia Solak is the maternal great-grandmother of both children.

Nicole Quinlan, a senior at Phillips Academy, is spending six weeks in Bali, Indonesia. She is participating in a community service project sponsored by Global Routes, a California-based non-profit organization.

The participants, 11 young people from across the United States, will assist a small village in its development.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Two lose race with a train

Patrick Duffy, 20, of 27 Forest Hill Drive, and another male who has not been identified by the police, unsuccessfully tried to beat a train to a crossing at 1:48 a.m. on July 11. The men drove Mr. Duffy's father's Volvo around a crossing gate in an attempt to beat the B & M freight train.

Mr. Duffy was arrested on Andover Street and charged with operating under the influence (liquor), operating to endanger, failure to stop at a railroad crossing, possession of false identification and malicious damage to school property. Mr. Duffy's car was covered with grass after allegedly driving across the lawn at Pike School.

The two men were uninjured, but the train engineer, William Kempton of Chelmsford, sprained his wrist pulling the brake and cut his face when he jumped from the train into a hole, while running to help.

smashed a bat against a mailbox. Other mailboxes were found damaged around the area, so the youths will be charged with seven counts of malicious damage to property under $250.

Police record two exposure incidents

Two incidents of indecent exposure occurred in Andover on July 13. At 12:27 a.m., a white male was reported on River Road in the first parking lot of the Andover Marriott hotel. The subject, on foot, allegedly was exposing himself to the people parking their cars. The man was reportedly tall, large framed, had brown hair and was wearing casual clothes.

Later that same day, at 11:44 a.m., another report was filed, this time from Sunset Rock Road. A resident reported a white male in his mid-30s driving a red pickup truck stopping and masturbating in front of the resident's daughter and her friend. The man had light brown hair, a small bald spot, and was wearing a dark blue pull-over shirt. Police were unsuccessful in locating the vehicle or the men involved in the incidents.

Three caught smashing mailboxes

For three Methuen youths, a baseball bat will hold memories besides Little League. The three were unaware of officer Matthew Aumais in the shadows of Greenwood Road at 2:15 a.m. on July 16, when one of them allegedly

ConsCom seeks conservation overseers

The Andover Conservation Commission seeks to install conservation overseers for the Glenwood Road conservation area.

The commission will nominate overseers at its regular meeting Tuesday, Aug. 6, for appointment by the Board of Selectmen.

Conservation overseers serve as neighborhood representatives of the town to keep a watchful eye on conservation land and promote appropriate activities.

Those interested should send a letter stating their willingness to serve to Robert A. Pustell, chairman, Andover Conservation Commission, town of Andover, Town Offices, 36 Bartlet St., on or by Aug. 5.

Towns offer oil recycling program

The waste oil recycling and disposal program, operated by the Andover and North Andover health departments, has scheduled its dates for August.

The collection tank, which is located in the rear of the North Andover fire station, will accept oil Saturday, Aug. 10, 9 a.m. until noon, and Wednesday, Aug. 14, 4 to 7 p.m.

Residents may dispose of a maximum of 10 gallons at a charge of 50 cents per gallon.

Proof of residency is required and oil adulterated with water, antifreeze, paint or any other foreign substance will be rejected.

Disposers should consolidate small units to the largest possible containers (i.e. quarts to five or 10 gallon containers.)

Contact the health department at 470-3800, Ext. 255, with any questions.

After arriving in Bali, the group travels to Termina Bay, in the remote northwest corner of the island. There they begin the orientation to Bali, learn some Indonesian, and snorkel spectacular coral reefs. At Kerambitan they spend four days living in a Balinese Temple/Palace Complex where they are hosted by a family who teaches the group about Balinese life and culture.

Next Nicole will move into a simple village home in Ubud, the cultural and artistic center of Bali. Recent intense developments related to tourism have caused many trees to be harvested to fuel the construction boom. The local population has started a reforestation project. Nicole will work alongside the Balinese planting trees, laying stones and replacing topsoil to help stop erosion.

Because of topsoil erosion the outer wall of an important Balinese temple, Ras, started to crumble and fall. The group will also help to restore the temple.

Later in the trip, the students will hike Mt. Batur, an active volcano, and ascend the peak to watch the sunrise. They will also work as apprentices to two Balinese artists, one a mask carver, the other a batik painter.

Nicole Quinlan

A trip to Java will complete the experience before heading home.

Nicole is the daughter of Thomas and Patricia Quinlan, 4 Cheyenne Circle.

Quote of the week last week had to be the one from Mary Donohue when called for information at the Community Services department in town offices Thursday.

"Can I call you back? I'm all alone and somebody's with me," Ms. Donohue responded.

After thinking of what she had said, Ms. Donohue explained that what she meant was she was the only employee of the office at the office that moment and someone from the street was there.

Ah. Now that's much clearer. Maybe Ms. Donohue should have taken that trip to Alaska last week along with the group organized by Community Services. That group is due back this week.

Postmaster Tony Mendoza tells us more than 5,000 people attended the Stevens Street facility's open house on July Fourth.

"I sold 30,000 stamps. We had a customer who bought 4,500, another customer bought 1,000," said Mr. Mendoza, referring to the one-day stamp cancellation honoring Raytheon's Patriot missile.

The last time the post office here put together a special issue stamp was for President Bush's visit to Andover in November, 1989. The post office also did one for the re-opening of Old Town Hall in May of 1989.

What's next for two laid off policemen?

By Don Staruk

One of the two officers laid off June 30 said he will miss his $27,000 salary, which includes incentives, but the loss won't be as bad as it could be.

"I'm not that bad because I don't have a mortgage, kids and a wife," he said.

But Joseph Thibodeau III, who lives at home with his parents, said the loss of his job wouldn't hurt so much if he thought the layoffs were necessary. But he doesn't.

"The money is there, as far as I'm concerned," he said. "It's like a slap in the face when they're doing all this renovation and a lot of other stuff. I'm not trying to throw stones at anyone. My biggest gripe is I just don't think it should have happened."

Brian McNally, the other laid-off officer, was just married June 9 and returned from his honeymoon to no job. But he was upbeat speaking with the Townsmen recently.

"Fortunately, my wife has a good job. We'll be able to make ends meet with that," he said.

Mr. McNally and his new wife, Cheryl, are house sitting for now so a mortgage isn't a problem for them either.

Mr. McNally plans to finish the last three courses he needs for a bachelor's degree in criminal justice in the fall at University of Massachusetts at Lowell.

He did apply for unemployment benefits but wasn't overly concerned that he'd be out of work for long because of the expensive training Andover invested in him.

"I'm not too worried about it. The chiefs in this area would gladly take a guy that's been trained," Mr. McNally said.

Chief James Johnson estimated the cost to the town for each patrolman's training, at the academy and on the job, at about $20,000.

Mr. Thibodeau said it doesn't make sense for the town to throw away that investment and is hoping that somehow something will change and he will be rehired.

There was some talk of making the two former officers auxiliary officers so they could be hired for private details, but that that got tied up in negotiations with the union over provision of health insurance and the town guaranteeing them each a full week's pay, according to the chief, and it didn't happen.

The patrolmen didn't receive any severance pay and Mr. Thibodeau had only two vacation days saved up, so he has relatively little to live on until he gets another job. He is looking at other police departments and considering other lines of work including an opportunity he may have in sales. He will receive a bachelor's degree from Salem State College at the end of July.

"It's just frustrating," Mr. Thibodeau said. "The biggest thing is that I liked the job. I really enjoyed it."

Parents raise questions about school busing

By Lisa Boudreau

Letters containing busing fee information from the schools' transportation coordinator were mailed July 9 to families with school children living less than two miles from their school. Two days later, the office started getting phone calls, according to Carol Znamierowski, head of transportation.

Students who live more than two miles from school will ride the bus for free. Those who live between one and one-half and two miles from their school will have to pay $119 to ride the bus, and those living less than one and one-half miles who want to ride the bus will have to pay $206. Deadline for fee payment is Friday, July 26.

Ms. Znamierowski said many of the calls have been simple, easy-to-field questions. One woman asked why she only received one letter for her kindergarten child and nothing for her high-school child. Answer: the kindergarten lived less than two miles from her school and the high school student lived more than two miles from Andover High and therefore was eligible for free busing.

But, that may not continue to be the case for secondary school students. According to new mandates passed with the state budget, cities and towns are no longer required to bus students in grades seven through 12, regardless of how far they live from the schools.

"Right now we don't know of any changes in the reimbursement we will get from the state for (secondary school students) so we'll continue on the regular fee schedule as for the other students," said Frank Paul, assistant superintendent of schools for business operations.

If and when the reimbursement to cities and towns changes for secondary students, the School Committee may wish to expand busing fees to cover transportation costs for all student to the two middle schools and high school, Mr. Paul said.

The School Committee's busing fee policy does not set a pay cap for those families with more than one child riding the bus. It is a pay-per-child schedule, Mr. Paul said.

But, those families in need of assistance can apply for fee waivers. Consideration for waivers or reduced busing costs is decided on the same basis as qualification for the free lunch and reduced-price lunch program.

Free transportation criteria works on a sliding income and household size scale, maximum of $10,946 per year for a household of two, up to a maximum of $27,838 per year for a household of eight.

Reduced-price transportation, or 40 percent of the busing fee, also works on a sliding scale of a maximum of $15,577 for a household of two, up to a maximum of $39,331 per year for a household of eight.

If parents have questions concerning busing and fees contact the transportation department at 470-3800.

(For a letter from a parent who says she can't afford the busing fees, see page 31 of today's Townsmen.)

Here's some bus rules:

- No breaks for families with more than one child being bused.
- Families can qualify for reduced rates on the same schedule as reduced lunch fees.
- Communities are not mandated by law to bus seventh through 12th graders, but for now, Andover will.
- In one family, one child may qualify for busing, while another may not, since the house is not the same distance from every school.
- Deadline to apply for busing, for those who have to pay, is Friday, July 26.

BUSINESS

LG Hospital Auxiliary donates funds to enlarge emergency waiting area

Andover resident Joan Lewis, president of the Lawrence General Hospital Auxiliary, announced that the auxiliary donated the $90,000 that allowed Lawrence General to expand its emergency department waiting area to give patients and their families more room to be comfortable as they await care. The renovations that began last fall and were recently completed doubled the existing space.

According to Gerard Foley, the hospital's executive vice president, the existing waiting room area is about 10 years old and had grown inadequate for the volume of people served.

"Our main drive was to provide additional space to afford patients and their family members more comfort and privacy, especially during busy times," he said.

Richard Iseke, director of the emergency department, added that the funding also enabled the creation of a pediatric area within the waiting room specifically geared toward providing diversions for children - whether they are awaiting treatment or accompanying an adult awaiting treatment.

"This area has a television and a VCR so we can air appropriate children's programming. It will also have chairs geared to children's smaller sizes," Mr. Foley said.

The Lawrence General Hospital auxiliary's role in funding this project is part of the partnership between the hospital, its staff and the auxiliary, Ms. Lewis stressed.

"We're very committed to the Greater Lawrence community and the ways we can make a difference," she stated.

Digital donates grant to college

Merrimack College has received a $300,950 equipment grant from Digital Equipment Corporation for hardware and software. The equipment will allow the college to establish two state-of-the-art computer workstation labs for mathematics, computer science, electrical engineering and computer engineering courses.

The equipment includes 11 workstations, 13 terminals, printers and equipment for computer networking.

The grant will also provide state-of-the-art computer workstations for electrical engineering faculty and in math and computer science offices. Merrimack's new Science, Engineering and Technology Center, now under construction, will be connected with the campus computer network.

Digital and Merrimack's relationship began in 1978 when the college received an equipment grant for graphics terminals, allowing Merrimack to offer its first computer graphics course.

Marriott employee receives award for saving a life

'I'm glad I was able to help. Each time you learn a first-aid technique, like the Heimlich maneuver or CPR, you always hope you'll never actually have to use it.'

Out of a national and international employee pool of more than 209,000 workers, Andover Marriott employee Lauren Pothier has distinguished herself among her peers. She earned the personal recognition of J.W. Marriott, chairman of the board and president of the Marriott Corporation, by performing the ultimate service - saving the life of another human.

Ms. Pothier, banquet captain with the Boston Marriott Andover for the past four years, discovered hotel housekeeper Amarilis Dominguez choking on a piece of food in the employee cafeteria. Responding to her lack of air and worsening color, Ms. Pothier successfully performed the Heimlich maneuver, dislodging the food in Ms. Dominguez's airway, enabling her to breathe freely.

Ms. Pothier is one of only 58 Marriott associates to be awarded the President's Award, which has been in effect for more than 20 years, acknowledging outstanding Marriott employees.

Ms. Pothier was honored during a recent corporate training meeting attended by 120 Marriott associates. Colin Nadeau, New England Marriott regional vice president, presented her with an engraved plaque, a Marriott commemorative watch and congratulatory letter from Mr. Marriott.

"Lauren has my heartfelt thanks for the quick response she made to this unfortunate incident," Mr. Marriott's letter noted. "It must be personally rewarding for her to know her knowledge and skill can save the life of another human being. I am delighted to have her as part of the Marriott team."

"I'm glad I was able to help," said Ms. Pothier. "Each time you learn a first-aid technique, like the Heimlich maneuver or CPR, you always hope you'll never actually have to use it. Looking back, I'm very happy that I had taken the time to learn the procedure."

To minimize emergency situations such as this and prepare hotel associates in the event of an accident, Marriott Corporation has created accident prevention committees at each of its hotel properties, according to Thomas Lee, Marriott area director of loss prevention for the Northeast region.

Ms. Pothier, a resident of Methuen, joined the Andover Marriott in 1987 as a banquet server.

Lawyer to open practice here

Lawrence native Alfred M. Zappala, a co-founder and former trustee of the Massachusetts School of Law in Andover, was sworn in as an attorney June 20 at a ceremony at the State House in Boston.

Mr. Zappala will open a law office in Andover at 26 Essex St. in August.

Besides practicing law, Mr. Zappala has formed a company, Multistate Tutorial Service (MTS), which will help prepare law school graduates to take and pass the bar examination. The company will conduct seminars in Andover and Boston.

Mr. Zappala graduated from Austin Preparatory School in Reading and received his undergraduate degree in sociology from the University of New England. He received his juris doctor from the Massachusetts School of Law in 1990.

IRS employees receive awards

The Andover Service Center of the Internal Revenue Service presented quality improvement awards to approximately 200 employees involved in the Quality Improvement Program.

The program began in 1987 to improve the overall efficiency and effectiveness of the Service Center and help employees and managers work together to identify and resolve problems within the workplace.

Bill Carroll, quality improvement coordinator, believes it has been successful.

"It has boosted employee morale and helped us to serve taxpayers better," he said.

Mr. Carroll also received a special act award for his involvement with the program.

More than 200 employees also received career service awards in recognition of their years of service. Awards were presented to employees with 10 or more years in the IRS. Seven people received awards for 35 years of outstanding service.

Honored for 25 years of service

Nancy E. Bresnahan of 4 Ivanhoe Lane was recently honored at New England Medical Center's annual service recognition dinner in Boston.

She was awarded a brass, glass-domed, pendulum clock in appreciation for 25 years of service during which time she was engaged in lipoprotein research in cardiology and continues to serve as a medical technologist in clinical chemistry.

Northern Essex Community College student Kevin Wreghitt of Andover, right, looks on as Richard Pastor, the college's director of financial aid and special services, presents him with the first annual Louis Gigliotti Memorial Scholarship. The ceremony took place at the graduation podium handicapped access ramp, which was recently dedicated in memory of Mr. Gigliotti.

Resident wins scholarship

Northern Essex Community College student Kevin Wreghitt of Andover received the first annual Louis Gigliotti Memorial Scholarship.

The $200 scholarship is awarded in memory of Lou Gigliotti of Haverhill, a second-year Northern Essex student who died unexpectedly last year at the age of 22. Mr. Gigliotti was president of the college's Social Club and an accomplished bowler, with interests in music and computers.

He fought to better conditions for people with disabilities and was involved in a video produced by Digital Equipment Corp. called "An Enabling Partnership: Making the Impossible Possible."

Mr. Gigliotti, who had cerebral palsy, used a wheelchair.

The scholarship recipient, Mr. Wreghitt, will return to Northern Essex in the fall. His long-range goals include transferring to a four-year university and pursuing a career in psychology.

More than $6,000 has been raised for the Gigliotti Scholarship Fund through the combined efforts of the Gigliotti family; the Northern Essex Community College Social Club; Linda Comeau, Northern Essex director of the office for students with disabilities; and Philip Dandurant, a Gigliotti family friend.

Included in those donations are $1,324 from the Social Club, $400 from Sheetmetal Workers Local 546 and $100 from the United Associations of Journeymen and Apprentices of the Plumbing and Pipefitting Industry, Local 788.

The ceremony took place at the graduation podium in the campus quadrangle to mark the dedication of a permanent handicapped access ramp in Mr. Gigliotti's name.

The ramp was built last year so students in wheelchairs and with mobility impairments could get to the podium. The ramp was a dream Mr. Gigliotti had shared with classmates.

Curing the summertime blues

Camps still accepting kids

If you're already bored with eating hot fudge sundaes and riding your bike around the block, you just might be able to get rid of your summertime blues.

Area camps are still enrolling for summer sessions, so you're in luck.

Andover's Department of Community Services sponsors a drop-in playground Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The cost is $49 for one child and $79 for a family. Interested participants can either pay at the playground, located at the town's elementary schools, or in advance at the DCS office on Bartlet Street.

The playground groups take weekly field trips through Aug. 14. The next field trip on their docket is to Cedarland in Haverhill, followed by a trip to Canobie Lake Park in Salem, N.H.

DCS is holding three other programs for children this summer. Camps Shee-Hee and Shaw-Nee are held at Shawsheen School from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday. Shee-Hee, which costs $84, is for 3- and 4-year-olds; and Shaw-Nee, at $88, is for 5- and 6-year-olds.

Camp Ha-Kow-Wee is geared for children in kindergarten to sixth grade. The program, held at Recreation Park, costs $180.

All DCS programs include a $15 registration fee. Enrollment is on a first-come, first-served basis. Participants will take part in camp activities such as swimming, sports, crafts, drama, canoeing, hiking, tennis and field trips.

Camp Merrymeeting in Andover, which is run by the Girl Scouts, is still accepting girls in first through eighth grades. Activities will include basketball, swimming lessons and nature exploration. There are three sessions left, but interested campers should sign up now because a physical is needed and the camp needs a few days' notice to set up bus trips. The cost is $145.

The Kaleidoscope summer enrichment program in Andover still has openings in its courses for preschool children.

Courses run for one week each - July 22-26 and July 29-Aug. 2 - and are held at West Elementary School.

Participants in a summer program at the Pike School can learn about whales or China. Adventures in Learning runs through Aug. 16 and is open to children who have completed kindergarten through sixth grade.

Instruction in math, language arts, science and social studies will strengthen skills and concepts learned in the school year just completed, said directors. Outdoor recreation is also an important part of the program.

Tuition for a three-week session is $600, and extended hours are available.

Cuddle Care Day Care in Andover has a summer program including week-long activities. These include the week of "Green Grass, Brown Dirt and Beautiful Butterflies," during which kids will discuss ways they can take care of the earth. The program ends Aug. 30.

Tuition is $4.50 an hour; weekly rates are $120 for preschoolers, $160 for toddlers and $185 for infants.

PA, Lawrence school team up

A group of tutors and teachers from Phillips Academy and the Lawrence public school system are joining forces for the third summer.

PALS Summer '91 Opportunity Program, a working partnership between the academy and Leonard Middle School in Lawrence, is a four-week-long session of tutoring in basic skills and enrichment for Leonard students entering grades six, seven and eight.

The PALS program is an extension of the tutoring of the Leonard School children by students from Phillips and Andover High School under the guidance of the community, service program during the academic year. The youngsters receive specific help in classroom work on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

In the PALS summer program the mornings are spent in small groups strengthening reading, writing and math skills. Afternoon activities include hands-on biology and games to bolster confidence for the sixth-graders; photography and computer activities for the seventh-graders; and a program in drama to strengthen language skills for the eighth-graders, in addition to a study-skills component.

Field trips once a week to sites such as Drumlin Farm, Lowell National Park and the Dinosaur Exhibit and the Central Artery project in Boston give new perspectives, organizers said.

The multicultural staff of PALS includes PA faculty; specialists from the Lawrence school system; high school students and recent graduates of Phillips and Andover and Lawrence high schools; two elementary reading specialists; and a documentary photographer.

Ann McKillop, president of the Merrimack Valley Andover/Abbot Association, recently presented PA Headmaster Donald McNemar a check for $3,000 to be put toward PALS.

"This was a recognition of responsibility and outreach to the local community and its needs," Mrs. McKillop said. The money was raised by the group's participation in this year's Handsprings craft show.

little way, other programs offer opportunities for summer fun.

The University of Lowell's Little Chiefs' Day Camp has a two-week session left, July 22-Aug. 2.

Designed for 6- to 12-year-olds, the Little Chiefs' Day Camp is a way for children to have fun while learning a wide range of sports and activities.

The day camp will be held on ULowell's south campus and make use of the university's tennis, volleyball and basketball courts, swimming pool, nature trails and athletic fields.

Campers will be placed in small groups according to their ages. All campers will receive Red Cross-certified swimming lessons.

The camp runs from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and costs $125 to attend.

Pingree School summer programs in Hamilton have already begun, but there are still spaces available for children and adults. Workshops include basic sign language, writing and illustrating children's books, pottery, photography, sculpture, printmaking, painting and drawing.

Course costs vary, and enrollment is limited, but you can sign up right until the last minute.

Pingree also runs a day camp for 6- to 11-year-olds, who may participate in activities like swimming, arts and crafts, nature studies and tennis. The program, which runs for one-week sessions through Aug. 16, is booked for the last two weeks of July, but there are still spaces available for other sessions.

Tuition is $96 for one week and $184 for two.

Camp Runels in Pelham, N.H., another Girl Scout camp, is offering one- and two-week overnight sessions through Aug. 11. Spaces are still available for girls entering grades two through 12 who want to participate in a general introduction to the outdoors and specialty programs in drama, aquatics and sports.

The base fee for one week is $165; it's $295 for a two-week session.

Psychologist Ellis H. Katz of 7 Elysian Drive has started a specialized summer camp for children aged 12 to 15 with a special focus on enhancing self-esteem and peer social skills through outdoor group experiences.

The program, Green Mountain Challenge, will use the skills of the staff of Pine Ridge Adventure Center in Williston, Vt.

Jewish Community Day Camp in Salem, N.H., is encouraging children in preschool through grade nine to enroll now to ensure their choice of session.

The camp, which is sponsored by United Jewish Communities, has options for two-week sessions through Aug. 16.

If you have any questions or need help deciding what program will best get you out of your summer slump, the reference desk at Memorial Hall Library has a booklet on summer programs for children.

Editor's note: This story was compiled by Townsman intern Helen Ubinas.

These basketball players spend a summer day at the Department of Community Services' drop-in playground at Bancroft School. DCS sponsors three other camps where kids can drop by for activities and field trips.

BABY TALK

by Jack Resnick

Safety should be your paramount concern when choosing materials for use with infants and toddlers. Beware of poorly made toys. Beware especially of small objects that might become lodged in a baby's mouth. Also be careful about paint used on toys and furniture for babies. All lead-based paints must be avoided. (Even though such paint is not used much any more, it is present in many older apartments and houses.) Lead-based paint on windowsills, for example, has been a significant source of poisonings of children less than three years of age.

St. Augustine's students win field awards

St. Augustine's School held its first River Duck Day on the Shawsheen River.

More than 900 rubber ducks were entered in the two-mile float to the finish line.

The winners were Ashley and Jay Tisbert, who won the first-place prize of $500.

Second-place finisher Darren Giorgio won $250, and Lee Marcinuk, third place, $100.

Several hundred spectators lined the river as the ducks raced to the finish. Proceeds went toward school projects.

St. Augustine's also held its annual picnic recently at Recreation Park. More than 200 parents and students attended.

Winners of the events were Meghan Licata, Debbie O'Connell and Ed Rheame, pie eating; Brian Licata and Nicole Rheame, younger waterballoon toss; Anthony Sakeeny and Nick Vantzelfde, older waterballoon toss; Valerie Berlinghieri and Kasia Kelley, younger peg-leg run; Debbie O'Connell and Tirzah Heller, older peg-leg run; Mike Kaczynski, Nate Vantzelfde, Sean Murphy and Sean Clark, big box relay; and Melissa Ottens, David Scalise and Laurie O'Connell, wacky waiter relay.

The scavenger hunt was won by teammates Nicole Rheame, Brian Licata and Nate Vantzelfde. The afternoon concluded with a Mass offered by the Rev. Thomas Meehan of St. Augustine Church.

Library cancels kids' programs

Two programs planned by the Memorial Hall Library children's room this summer have been canceled because of staff cutbacks.

The Monday afternoon crafts program, "Make It On Monday," and the Thursday evening story hour, "Pajama Party," will not be offered, said community services librarian Norma Gammon.

The library's weekday morning story hour, which is held at 9:30 and 11:30 a.m., will continue as scheduled, as will all other programs, including WizardRead, the summer reading program.

"We were ready to start this year, and we just didn't have the staff," Ms. Gammon said.

Trustees of Reservations turns 100 Stevens Place hosts birthday party

The Trustees of Reservations is throwing a birthday party.

The world's oldest land trust will celebrate its 100th birthday Saturday, July 20, with a "Discovery Day" at the Stevens-Coolidge Place near North Andover's Old Center Common. The celebration runs from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., rain or shine, and is free and open to the public.

Since its founding in 1891, the Trustees of Reservations has been dedicated to preserving for public use and enjoyment properties of exceptional scenic, historic and ecological value across the state.

An array of activities has been planned for all ages at the Stevens-Coolidge Place, one of 72 properties the organization owns and manages.

Laura Scott's Highland Dancers will kick off the birthday celebration at 11:15 a.m. with a lively performance in the garden. Dressed in traditional kilts, they will skip to the bagpipes of Tom Childs.

The Boston Scandinavian Ensemble, also dressed in native costume, will follow with an exhibition of Scandinavian song and dance.

Fred Winthrop Jr., director of the Trustees of Reservations, will welcome guests at 12:30 p.m. The Bennington Marionettes of Bennington, Vt., a professional touring company, will perform The Firebird in a tent at 1 p.m. Incorporating Igor Stravinsky's original musical score, the troupe promises illusions, explosions, high drama and a happy ending.

Mr. Winthrop will cut the birthday cake at 2 p.m. and formally dedicate a sugar maple tree planted on the grounds of the Stevens-Coolidge Place to commemorate the centennial.

Other entertainment throughout the day includes tenor Allan Coombs as a Neapolitan singer and accordion player; magician and juggler Peter O'Mally; accordionist Alan French and puppeteer Ann McKay, who will provide marionettes and a stage to give children a hands-on puppetry experience.

The house will be open for tours, and tours of its gardens are scheduled for 11 a.m., noon and 1 p.m.

Formerly the summer home of author, diplomat and world traveler John Gardner Coolidge and his wife, Helen Stevens Coolidge, the Stevens-Coolidge Place evokes gracious living in the early 20th century.

Families are encouraged to bring a picnic lunch and spread out on the grounds surrounding the house. Sandwiches and other refreshments will be on sale throughout the day, and complimentary juices and birthday cake will be served.

The Stevens-Coolidge Place near North Andover's Old Center will host the Trustees of Reservations' 100th birthday Saturday with an array of activities for all ages.

Co-chairmen of the Discovery Day committee Susan Winthrop of Ipswich and Katrina Hart of Hamilton worked with other members of the committee to plan this event. They include Helen Eccles, Jane Gossard, Peggy Keck, Suzanne Kendrick, Margaret Kimball and Kay Noyes of Andover, Nancy Goss of North Andover and Betty Eckerson of West Boxford.

Donations were provided by Joseph and Anne Pellegrino, Kay Noyes, Watts Regulator Co., The Best of Thymes, the North Andover Garden Club, the North Andover Improvement Society and the Demoulas Foundation.

The Bennington, Vt., Marionettes will perform The Firebird with their 30-inch puppets at 1 p.m. during Saturday's celebration.

Painter Lynn Loscutt of Jenkins Road will give a slide lecture on painting and traveling at the North Shore Art Association in Gloucester Saturday at 8 p.m.

Local artist gives lecture

Artist Lynn Loscutt of Andover will give a slide lecture she calls a "visual diary" of her travels Saturday, July 20, at 8 p.m. at the North Shore Art Association, 197 E. Main St. in Gloucester.

Ms. Loscutt has painted from Morocco to China and her native California to her adopted Boston, Cape Ann and Andover. She will show slides of areas she's painted. The evening's theme is international, including the refreshments. Ms. Loscutt's lecture marks the first of a series of special events to be presented at the North Shore Art Association.

Ms. Loscutt, who maintains a studio in Lanesville, was executive director of the Copley Art Society in Boston for nine years before leaving in 1986 to concentrate on her own art work. She was awarded the Copley Medal for distinguished service to the arts in the city of Boston.

Ms. Loscutt travels extensively and records her impressions in watercolor and oil. She was very involved in public relations in Boston, and many of her trips were made as a representative of the arts from Boston.

One of these trips took her to Israel with a group of Christian women of various professions. Ms. Loscutt traveled to China in 1988 with a cultural exchange group from Boston. She presented a painting to the host governor and represented Boston as an artist and goodwill ambassador.

She planted dogwood trees in Japan in exchange for the cherry trees that have been planted along the Charles River in Boston by Japanese representatives. Her paintings were gifts to host governors and dignitaries.

Ms. Loscutt presented a one-women exhibit of her work done in Israel, China, Japan and California after each trip. Some of the slides she'll show Saturday are of these works.

The painter will also talk about the practical aspects of her work, such as how to travel light.

There is no admission for her lecture, which is open to the public.

Midlife crisis movie redeems itself

By Alison Wolfe

In City Slickers, three middle-aged New Yorkers head to New Mexico to drive cattle. "Oh, no," you cry. "Not another movie about a midlife crisis!"

Before you flee in terror, meet the victims. Billy Crystal plays a man who hates his job, loves his family but feels trapped by both. His buddies, played by Bruno Kirby, a man afraid of fatherhood, and Daniel Stern, a henpecked, philandering husband, give him the trip for his 39th birthday.

The trio is joined in New Mexico by the most unlikely group of cowpokes imaginable: a pair of wacky ice-cream magnates, a father-and-son dental team and a lovely young divorcee. This pack of oddballs is led by a stoic cowboy played by Jack Palance, a couple of hired hands and a drunken cook.

Although the pace slows down out on the range, the laughter doesn't stop. Mr. Crystal is excellent with an affable and charming style, while the flaky Mr. Kirby and somewhat psychotic Mr. Stern offer strong support.

City Slickers is a film in which you laugh at a line for five minutes, pause and then laugh some more. Yes, it's another movie about a midlife crisis, but instead of a brooding psychoanalysis you see a man with a lot of humor and not a lot of dignity grasp for a definitive meaning.

Lecturers talk about care of quilts

"Heirloom Quilts: Care and Preservation" will be discussed by Kathy Francis and Muffie Austin of the Textile Conservation Center Wednesday, July 24, at 7:30 p.m. at the Museum of American Textile History, 800 Massachusetts Ave., North Andover.

This slide lecture for artists, collectors and owners of family heirlooms will emphasize how to preserve textile treasures, both contemporary and antique quilts, for future generations. The conservators will discuss the sources of damage to fabrics and methods that the collector can use to best preserve textile materials.

The Textile Conservation Center works on historic and artistic quilts for museums and private collectors in New England and across the country. Ms. Francis, the center's chief conservator, is interested in textile processes and finishes that are of concern during treatment and display. She earned a bachelor of science in clothing and textiles at Framingham State College and has been on the TCC staff since 1979.

Ms. Austin, assistant conservator, is especially interested in quilt design, which has inspired her to create watercolor artwork that she calls quilt paintings. At the TCC since 1983, she was formerly a tailor, costume designer, patternmaker and owner of a vintage clothing shop. She holds a bachelor of fine arts degree from Massachusetts College of Art and is a master's candidate there.

Admission is $3. Following the lecture, a drawing will be held for archival storage materials - acid-free box and paper - for a quilt. Visitors may also tour the museum's summer exhibit, "Quilts: A Window to the Past," a collection of quilts, sewing tools, photographs and artifacts that are tangible evidence of the changes in women's lives since the 1800s.

Other quilt-related programs include "An All-Day Look at Textiles and Quilts," a bus trip led by Edythe Cederlund and Stephanie Hatch on Saturday, Aug. 3. Co-sponsored by the Museum of American Textile History and the New England Quilt Museum, the program will focus on identifying the textiles in the quilts on exhibit at the two museums.

Beginning at 10:30 a.m. at the textile museum with a discussion of textiles and quilts, the day will include a box lunch on the Old North Andover Common and a gallery walk at the quilt museum. The fee of $25 includes transportation, admission to both museums and lunch. Advance registration is required.

A two-part workshop for beginning quilters will be held Wednesday, Aug. 7 and 14, from 7 to 9 p.m. Taught by quilter Deborah Nowell, the workshop will include a lecture and demonstration on beginning quilting and a hands-on quilting practice. The cost is $30; students provide their own materials.

For more information, call the museum at 686-0191.

Blankets, lawn chairs and picnics are invited. Printed programs may be found at the tower door.

Sally Slade Warner, PA's carillonneur, will give an open tower carillon demonstration Thursday, July 25, from 6 to 8 p.m. Call 749-4264.

Bands plays Civil War songs

The Castle Hill Music Festival will present D.C. Hall's New Concert and Quadrille Band Sunday, July 28, at 6 p.m.

The six-member ensemble will perform music played in Massachusetts during the Civil War.

The band is modeled after the Halls Brothers Band, a popular 19th-century group that played throughout the states.

Band members will perform on historic instruments and appear in 19th-century attire.

Admission is $18. Gates open at 4 p.m. for picnicking in the Tower Garden. The performance will be held in the Concert Barn. For tickets, call the Castle Hill Festival box office in Ipswich.

Walking a different path

Andover High alumna fulfills dream of becoming a rabbi

By Helen Ubinas

Carole Balin knew exactly what she wanted to do with her life when she was a college sophomore.

Unlike many of her peers, her future plans did not include a house in the suburbs, an expensive car in the driveway and 2.5 kids. Instead, she chose to become a rabbi.

Rabbi Balin, daughter of Theodore and Marcia Balin of 56 Wild Rose Drive, now lives in New York City. She has her own congregation in New Jersey and has no definite plans of returning to Andover's suburbs.

This summer, she will celebrate her third wedding anniversary with her husband, Mike, a lawyer, whom she describes as being "strongly committed to Jewish religion."

It was in the middle of her second year at Wellesley College that Rabbi Balin "realized I could combine doing what I liked to do."

She was ordained in May at Temple Emanu-El in New York City.

A 1982 graduate of Andover High School, she received a bachelor's degree in history from Wellesley and attended Hebrew Union College Jewish Institute of Religion in New York City.

"I reached a point where I was continuously increasing my Jewish identity," she said. "I additionally liked working with people very much."

Her first year of rabbinical school included living in Jerusalem.

"It was terrific," she said. "The goal of the year was to absorb the language."

Rabbi Balin is part of the Reform movement of Judaism, which is fairly liberal. She said the movement tries to show people that choices made in their religious life are based on education.

"As a result, it uses Jewish law for guidance rather than governance," she said.

Rabbi Balin said of the 35 students in her rabbinical class, about half were women. Reform Judaism has had ordained women since 1972. Rabbi Balin said there are approximately 200 female rabbis in the United States.

Being a 26-year-old woman in a historical religion can bring difficulties, but Rabbi Balin said "over time, it's competence that counts."

"At first people are startled and hesitant to accept," she said. "Some people are reluctant but, overall, they're fairly welcoming."

Rabbi Balin believes Judaism has a strong connection to the past.

"Through centuries of tragedy, Judaism continually held a strong sense of historical connection," she said.

But, Judaism has an essential hope for the future despite the tragedies Jewish people have faced, she added.

"With the founding of Israel as a state, there is optimism among the people," she said.

Rabbi Balin will leave her temple, the Jewish Congregation of Kinnelon, at the end of the month to pursue her doctorate at Columbia University in New York City.

She said she is "most impressed with studying and teaching" and would ultimately like to pursue that path. She wants to teach Judaism at a seminary.

So far, Rabbi Balin has performed conversions, baby naming and bar mitzvahs.

She said she is impressed with the "trust people put on their rabbi."

"I am very fond of (my congregants)," she said. "We have a wonderful relationship."

Carole Balin says she's able to combine her Jewish identity and love of people as a newly ordained rabbi. She leads her own congregation.

Former resident ordained rabbi

Growing up, she said, Rabbi Harry Roth, rabbi emeritus of Temple Emanuel of Andover, was a great influence on her. Her family and friends also supported her through her decision making. But her decision to become a rabbi was a gradual one that came about through the evolution of her own ideas, she said.

"It was the logical next step for me," she said. "My friends and family were prepared."

While many people continually search for satisfaction in their careers and lives, Rabbi Balin says she has found it.

"Judaism is spiritually satisfying. I feel a deep connection to God through working with other people, and I hope to form a stronger connection."

Rabbi speaks to elderly

Rabbi Robert S. Goldstein, spiritual leader of Temple Emanuel of Andover, spoke recently with the residents of Willow Manor Retirement and Nursing Home in Lowell.

Rabbi Goldstein is leading a monthly discussion group at the nursing home on a variety of topics pertaining to Judaism and spirituality.

The group is part of an ongoing effort to meet residents' spiritual needs, a spokeswoman said.

ZBA delays decision on Vicor expansion

Professional Center for Handicapped Children worries it will eventually be displaced

By Lisa Boudreau

The Zoning Board of Appeals delayed making a decision Saturday, July 13, on Vicor Inc.'s request to expand and build on land adjacent to its Frontage Road plant.

Vicor is a telecommunications parts manufacturer. The land listed on the use variance request is for three lots, owned by Bruk Company, a management firm in Andover. The land abuts the Vicor plant. One of the three lots is currently used by the Professional Center for Handicapped Children, which leases a building on that lot.

At a public hearing on the request last Thursday, July 11, a spokesman for The Professional Center for Handicapped Children voiced concerns about being displaced. The center is a school for about 250 mentally and physically handicapped individuals.

Thomas St. Germain, Vicor's chief financial officer, said his company only plans to expand on the two lots not used by the school.

"We do have a social conscience and realize the school does important work and is a community asset," Mr. St. Germain said during a telephone interview this week.

Veryl Anderson, co-director of the Professional Center for Handicapped Children, said by telephone this week that she believes Vicor would eventually expand to all three lots.

Steve Colyer, of the town planning office, confirmed that Vicor has asked for a variance request from the ZBA on all three lots, but he added that the expansion plans that would double the size of the existing plant only refer to the two lots not used by the Professional Center for Handicapped Children.

"The plans look like they will double their floor space by building a two-story addition for laboratory and manufacturing space. I was told it would be more of a robotics operation and not employ too many more people," Mr. Colyer said.

The ZBA has until Aug. 7 to make a decision on the variance request. The board may ask for a 30-day extension to make the decision, due to the summer schedule of many of the board members.

If the request is granted, Vicor would need a special permit from the Planning Board to proceed with its building plans, Mr. Colyer said.

'We do have a social conscience and realize the school does important work and is a community asset.'

Thomas St. Germain, Vicor's CEO

RECYCLING

Numbers of recyclers in June is down

By Virginia Cole

June's participation in Andover's recycling program is down. We hope this is because people are or were away, but it is significant that the figures for each week are substantially lower than those in May or previous months.

Has the novelty worn off? Are you tired of blue boxes? I hope recycling is no longer a novelty or even something to be considered each week. It needs to be a habit, a regular duty that must be done each day; save the papers, save the glass and save the plastic and aluminum for once a month collection.

I can urge you to buy more food in glass than in plastic because all glass can be recycled and only some plastic. I can remind you that in Andover, Waste Management is picking up magazines and catalogs and junk mail with the newspapers. The actual figures for June, if you too are keeping track, are 214 tons total recycled as against 290 in May; 36 tons of glass as against 65 in May and 15,910 homes participating instead of the 16,560 in May. Percentage participation is down to 68 percent; it was 73 percent in May.

These are the lowest figures since the program began. You know why we need to recycle; save money for the town and taxes for you; save the environment by reusing materials instead of wasting them; lowering the amount of disposables in incinerators, which pollute the air and in landfills that pollute the ground and eventually ground water. No reasons have changed. Only people have changed. Please don't be one of them.

bedridden and totally dependent," Dr. deConstant said during a home visit last week with VNA registered nurse Pearl Stewart-Ryan.

Mrs. Stewart-Ryan said he still keeps tabs on all the medications prescribed for him, but now at least he doesn't try to second guess and question the dosage. She and Dr. deConstant have developed a friendship and professional respect for each other during the seven months she has been assigned to his case.

"It's important they (VNA nurses and staff) get the recognition they deserve. They run the whole outfit over there," said Dr. deConstant.

"And they do a damn fine job," he added.

Dr. deConstant has a history of diabetes, which led to pancreas problems and other complications that sent him to the hospital for more than eight months. In January he was able to go home, but his wife, Jayne, runs a day-care center and couldn't be home during the day to care for him. Their two sons, Mark and Alex, who live with them, weren't able to be home around the clock to make sure their father was all right, Mrs. Stewart-Ryan said.

Through his physician, Dr. deConstant's family learned about VNA services, including nursing and home-care assistance. When Dr. deConstant went home in January a HomeCare health aide came to his house two times each day for two hours per visit, seven days a week, 28 hours of care a week.

The aide would help with small cleaning and organizing projects, as well as prepare meals for Dr. deConstant. He said he enjoyed having the aide in the house because it was nice to talk with different people. Mrs. Stewart-Ryan has been his nurse since he returned home. An occupational therapist, physical therapist, as well as a social worker were also assigned to Dr. deConstant.

"He had a lot of physical needs that required constant attention. His blood pressure and blood sugar had to be monitored constantly due to the diabetes," Mrs. Stewart-Ryan said of Dr. deConstant's health problems, which are now under control. She now concentrates on what she calls case management. She visits twice a month.

"We cooperate in every way," said Dr. deConstant, as he sat in a living room chair holding the meter while Mrs. Stewart-Ryan took his blood pressure.

During the visit last week to Dr. deConstant's home, the nurse took his pulse and listened to his lungs. She also asked him questions concerning his daily health. She wanted to know when his next scheduled blood sample was going to be taken, how his appetite was, if he was drinking enough fluids, was he able to take many walks and how long were they and was he able to get along well with a cane?

The physical therapist was instrumental in getting Dr. deConstant out of bed once he was strong enough to begin walking.

"She got me up and out of bed and walking laps up and down the hall. I had a walker and then I graduated to a cane," he said.

When Dr. deConstant was finally up to it, the physical therapist worked with him on how to descend the stairs safely.

"When I was going down she'd be in front of me and when I'd go up she'd be behind me making sure I didn't crash and burn," he said.

The occupational therapist worked on showing him a safe way to get out of bed and into a shower chair. He also had to learn an easier way to get dressed in the morning so he could do it by himself.

But the physical progress came after help from his social worker, Carole Trickett, who began going to his house once a week when he left the hospital. She not only works with the VNA but also is affiliated with the Merrimack Valley Counseling Center as well as her own practice.

Because of his many physical problems and being confined to the upstairs of his home, Dr. deConstant had withdrawn and become disinterested in the activity that was going on around him, said Mrs. Stewart-Ryan.

"She helped me psychologically. I was in a deep, dark depression. I'd been in the hospital for so many months that I wasn't interested in anything any more," Dr. deConstant said.

"She helped me by bringing me out of myself and getting me interested in life again," he said.

Ms. Trickett showed him how to use relaxation techniques and talked with him about many of the same interests they share. Dr. deConstant was a pilot before he became an anesthesiologist and Ms. Trickett got him interested in reading about that topic. He is currently reading Tom Wolfe's The Right Stuff, about NASA astronauts.

"There are many aspects to my job. I am a friend when patients need understanding, a motivator when they need encouragement and a resource when they need extra help and services and they don't know know where to turn," Ms. Trickett said.

"With (Dr. deConstant) I worked with him to get accustomed to the changes in his life due to his illness. We also worked on decreasing the isolation he was in," she said.

Dr. deConstant said the VNA nurse, health aids, therapists and social worker have made his recovery easier and helped him re-gain the independence he didn't have in the hospital or when he first went home.

"They've given Jayne and me peace of mind. She can go to work and know that I'm taken care of," he said.

The occupational therapist is getting ready to finish working on Dr. deConstant's case and the physical therapist no longer makes home visits.

Visiting Nurse is 3 groups

By Lisa Boudreau

Visiting nurses have been an organized force in the Merrimack Valley for almost 100 years. The Visiting Nurse Association, now located on 1 Union St., began in 1895 and has expanded its services into two other organizations to meet the growing needs of surrounding communities.

VNA HomeCare Inc., Merrimack Valley Hospice, and HomeCare Inc. are non-profit subsidiaries of the Home Health Foundation. The three agencies work together to provide people recovering from illness and injury, the elderly and the disabled with health care. VNA HomeCare and Merrimack Valley Hospice services are covered by Blue Cross and accept private insurance plans, health maintenance organization plans, Medicare and Medicaid and patients' private funds. HomeCare services are paid for by clients.

Nurses and home health aides

There are a variety of VNA registered nurses who specialize in a number of health-care fields, including maternal-child nurses who provide care for mothers, infants and small children, and psychiatric nurses who work with physicians and family members of patients to develop a home-care plan to ease the transition from institution to home.

Certified home-health aides, who are supervised by VNA nurses, give personal care to assist patients with daily activities. Spanish speaking staff is available.

Rehabilitation services, including physical therapists and speech therapists, work with patients to return them to productive living through a plan of home exercise, the use of adaptive equipment and ongoing education for the patient, family and care givers.

Geriatric nurses and nurse practitioners are trained to focus on keeping elderly patients healthy. Health clinics for the elderly are held at local councils on aging and other sites. The clinics offer health screenings, blood pressure and cholesterol monitoring and diet and nutrition education. Community programs include caregiver seminars, maternal health clinics, diabetes and other screenings, and flu shots.

VNA also has a complete range of high-tech nursing services, including IV therapy. The VNA team meets with the patient and family before discharge from a hospital to discuss health-care plans.

The AIDS program offers HIV-related support services for patients and their families. Since 1986, VNA HomeCare has been recognized for service in the field of HIV care by receiving grants from the state, said Deborah Reiter, director of community education at VNA HomeCare Inc. Services include nursing and high-tech care, medical-related social service, volunteer support, support times each week, down from the original two times each day for seven days a week.

"They've (VNA services) made it a lot easier for me to be at home. It's been both physically and morally uplifting for us to have them here," Dr. deConstant said.

Businesses edging back to the downtown

rently located on Essex Street in Lawrence, is moving to the Barnard Building on Main Street and should be open here by September, according to owner Bill Griffin.

"We're really excited," Mr. Griffin said Friday.

The store will be located on the first floor of the Barnard Building, across the foyer from Ford's Coffee Shop.

"We're going to be moving into that half of the Barnard Building," Mr. Griffin said.

Inside construction on the store was scheduled to begun by this week.

Mr. Griffin said his business will compete with Enzo of Andover, another upscale men's clothing store, which is located in the Musgrove Building just up the block, but Mr. Griffin said all new business should be considered good business.

"The more that's in that area, the better it is for everyone," he said. "They feed off each other."

Along with dress pants, shirts and suits, Mr. Griffin said his store also carries sportswear, particularly a fine line of St. Croix Knits.

"I really carry some of the greatest sportswear in the country," he said.

Mr. Griffin said he is hopeful the rest of the Barnard Building will soon fill up.

"I'd like to see the building full. The more that's there, the more traffic is created for everyone," he said.

Other businesses are looking at the available space in the Barnard Building, but nothing had been negotiated by this week.

Taylor Shop

The Taylor Shop is also relocating from Essex Street in Lawrence to Andover and should open in the former Nordic Furs location on Barnard Street the first week in August.

The Taylor Shop features "women's better clothing," according to owner Millie Vogel.

Ms. Vogel, who had a store on Main Street here from 1968 to 1983, is looking forward to her return.

"I feel as though I'm going home again," she said.

Barcelos building

CVS/Pharmacy has begun the move to its new home in the newly renovated Barcelos building on Main Street. The new store, which will be open 24-hours-a-day, is scheduled to open Aug. 2.

The new store has 9,430 square feet of space.

"That's a little larger than our average store," a spokesperson for the store said. "It almost doubled the old store."

Although the store will offer wider aisles and more products, the management will be the same and everything from the old store will just be moved across the street.

The current store employs about 25 people. The new store will hire 15 more employees to cover the added 24-hour service, the spokesperson said.

Carlos Barcelos, co-owner of the building, said the new CVS store, with its glass entrance way, will be a showplace.

"They don't have a building like that anywhere," Mr. Barcelos said.

CVS still has four and a half years left in a five-year lease with Richmond Properties at the location it is leaving, 54 Main St. The space is available for lease through the CVS's corporate offices, but no prospects for it had appeared by early this week, according to the spokesperson.

Shawmut Bank

Shawmut Bank was also working on renovations to its new office in the Barcelos Building this week, according to Mr. Barcelos, who said the bank should be open this fall.

"That's what it looks like now - sometime in October or November probably," Mr. Barcelos said.

Shawmut could not be reached for comment on the types of services it expects to offer at the Main Street office.

The entire second floor of office space in the Barcelos building is for lease and all of it is still available, Mr. Barcelos said Monday. He declined to say what's he's charging for his office rental space. But Mr. Barcelos said he isn't too worried about getting it leased, nor surprised at the seeming upswing in business activity here.

"Andover's a strong business town," Mr. Barcelos said.

Kaps looking

Richard Kapelson, owner of Kaps Menswear, another upscale men's clothing store and also currently on Essex Street in Lawrence, apparently agrees with Mr. Barcelos.

"We're interested in Andover," Mr. Kapelson said Tuesday.

Mr. Kapelson has looked at several locations for a store in Andover in the past year and is currently exploring and negotiating on a couple of sites, he said.

One of the sites being looked at is the old post office building on Main Street, but Kaps has not bought the building nor worked out any agreement with the U.S. Postal Service, Mr. Kapelson said. But he said he is actively looking to locate in town.

"Kaps is interested in making something happen and I'm working on it," Mr. Kapelson said.

CBDC to solicit mix

A subcommittee of the new Central Business District Committee, formed at the committee's meeting last Friday morning, will soon begin selecting types of businesses members determine are needed to create a healthy mix downtown.

The CBDC was established by the Planning Board and the Board of Selectmen earlier this year to market the town to businesses and shoppers and trouble-shoot problems in the downtown. It is comprised of members of both the business and residential community.

At their meeting Friday, members began delegating responsibilities to various subgroups, including one to work on parking issues and another to solicit new businesses, such as a hardware store and grocery store, according to Enzo Fossella, owner of Enzo's of Andover and president of the Andover Chamber of Commerce.

"I'm very optimistic about the future of Andover," Mr. Fossella said. "I know that the economy situation is not over yet. But once it is over, what they are doing with the business mix will make it a better downtown."

Andover's downtown businesses unite

ic" advertising and promotions schemes, depending on the amount of participation, or money, they receive.

The association has about 30 members currently, but the marketing plan would promote "100-plus" stores in the downtown and Mr. Russem said he hopes most or all of them would get involved. Mr. Quinn agreed.

"The participation is key. When we advertise, how we advertise, is going to be dependent in a large part on the people in this room," Mr. Quinn told the group.

Reaction to the marketing proposal seemed positive at the meeting and at least two attendees said right there that they would gladly put in the $300.

Scott Piehler, manager of the Gary Kogon Gallery on Main Street, said the downtowns of Nashua, N.H., and Lowell did nothing when the Pheasant Lane Mall in Nashua opened and both suffered as a result. Downtown

Andover should not let the same thing happen, he said.

Another part of the argument for such a group approach was that malls use it.

The Rockingham Mall is charging its stores thousands of dollars for advertising just to promote its grand opening, according to one source. Similar amounts of money are billed to stores at all malls for advertising on an ongoing basis, as agreed to in their leases.

Another attendee said that Newburyport is asking $600 and $800 from that city's local business owners to run an advertising campaign there.

Most members of the group did not want to compare themselves to a mall and wanted to stress the individual attention and service provided by stores operated by owners as opposed to mall franchises and outlets.

"The fact that we really care about our customers," said Bill Dalton, owner of the Andover Book Store.

"The feeling in this town is one of a personal approach. One of quality, one of character," said Millie Vogel, owner of The Taylor Shop, soon to locate to Barnard Street from Lawrence.

Mr. Russem was pleased with Wednesday's turn out at the meeting.

"This is the most people at one of our meetings that we've ever had," he said.

But the organizers said that once the advertising gets off the ground, business owners better be prepared to provide shoppers the services they've promised.

Progress on the promotional campaign and items such as beautification of the downtown will be discussed at the group's next meeting at 7:30 Wednesday morning, Aug. 7, in the Andover Town House.

The Central Business District Committee, the town appointed group which is also studying issues in the downtown, has a meeting scheduled for Tuesday, July 30, at 7:30 p.m.

Town, police try new approach to settle contract

By Don Staruk

Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, said Wednesday that negotiations with the Police Patrolmen's Union are tentatively scheduled to resume on July 29 and that he is hopeful use of an independent mediator will result in a contract.

"We're going to go back to the JLMC," Mr. Stapczynski said.

The police patrolmen have been without a contract for more than two years. Negotiations with the Joint Labor Management Committee, an independent arbitration process set up by the state, had not achieved a contract by this past spring, so Mr. Stapczynski, at the request of the union, stepped in to try and resolve the differences.

That effort failed when the patrolmen turned down a final offer by the town on June 14, prior to the end of the fiscal year on June 30, and a subse-

Addison wins censorship battle with D.C. museum

By Lisa Boudreau

Officials of the Addison Gallery of American Art at Phillips Academy have won a highly publicized censorship battle with the director of the National Museum of American Art in Washington, D.C.

The director of the National Museum originally excluded a series of 10 photographs of a nude female in an exhibit of 170 works of art put together by Jock Reynolds, director of the Addison, and James Sheldon, curator of photography at the Addison.

The exhibit, "Motion and Document, Sequence and Time: Eadweard Muybridge and Contemporary American Photography," is of photography studying the sequence of motion, said Mr. Sheldon. The study originally was pioneered by the photographer in the 1870s. Mr. Sheldon said about half the exhibit contains Muybridge's photographs and the other half is made up of photographers' works that were influenced by the ideas and study of motion.

The part of the exhibit originally withheld from the Washington show is an eight-foot black box with 10 illuminated chambers. Through an opening in each chamber the viewer can see a series of sequential photographs, taken by Sol LeWitt, of a nude female model striding forward until by the last box, where only her navel is visible, said Mr. Reynolds.

Those in Andover will be able to see the photos when they return to the Addison for an exhibit beginning Oct. 18.

Elizabeth Broun, director of the National Museum of American Art, stated in a letter to Mr. Reynolds that she pulled the LeWitt series because "... looking at (the series of photographs in the illuminated boxes), rather than the image presented, that presents a problem for me. The formal female nude which the work shows is no different from many other Muybridge nudes on display in the exhibition...However, the image is placed behind 10 peep-holes in an elongated black box, with the frame focusing ever closer on the woman's pubic region..."

Ms. Broun continues, "Focusing increasingly on the pubic region invokes unequivocal references to a degrading pornographic experience."

Mr. Reynolds is no stranger to controversy. As director of the Washington Project for the Arts before coming to PA, he showed photographer Robert Mapleson's controversial exhibit when it was cancelled in many other galleries across the country.

Mr. Reynolds said he was "dumbfounded" when he learned that Ms. Broun pulled the LeWitt series. He and Mr. Sheldon then formally requested the National Museum close the entire exhibit and ship it back to the Addison. Following pressure from the Addison and others in the art world, including Andrea Miller-Keller, curator of the LeWitt collection, the National Museum restored the series to the exhibit.

The Attitudes of Animals in Motion, by Eadweard Muybridge, 1881, PLATE 35, Trotting, is part of the exhibit that is now in Washington, D.C.

quent counter offer by the union was turned down by the town.

Now the JLMC will resume negotiations with a new head arbitrator who Mr. Stapczynski hopes can resolve the disagreements over a contract.

Mr. Stapczynski wasn't sure if one meeting would be enough to resolve the differences, and said more likely a series of meetings would be needed.

"It may take several meetings for them to define the issues," Mr. Stapczynski said.

Can't pay taxes? Take action now!

Don't wait until the IRS has levied your paycheck or seized your house. If you receive a bill from the IRS, take action immediately.

Taxpayers who file returns but don't pay all of their taxes can receive up to five notices over a period of about 20 weeks. If a taxpayer ignores the first four notices, a final notice is sent by certified mail. When there is still no response to the final notice, enforced collection action, such as a levy to a paycheck or a lien on real estate property is the next step.

"If you cannot pay, call or visit our office to determine how to resolve this liability," said Gerard R. Esposito, Boston district director. The IRS may work out a monthly payment plan, defer the collection of tax until the taxpayer's situation improves or may suggest that a taxpayer should secure a loan from a commercial lender or sell property to pay off the debt. Since January, more than 5.6 million taxpayers received a first notice, averaging $2,143 in delinquent taxes. This is a slight increase over the same time last year when 5.4 million taxpayers owed bills averaging $2,037.

"The most common reason why taxpayers get a tax bill is because they do not have enough withheld from their paychecks," said Mr. Esposito. "If last year's withholding did not cover the tax owed, then taxpayers should adjust their 1991 withholdings by filling out a new Form W-4 with their employer."

A first notice of tax due also includes a copy of Publication 1, Your Rights As a Taxpayer. This publication explains a taxpayer's rights at every point throughout the collection process.

Among those rights are the right to be accompanied in a meeting with the IRS by a qualified representative and to have meetings scheduled at a mutually convenient time.

for 18 years, most recently in charge of helping businesses work out loans that were in default. He was fired July 5 in relation to the embezzlement investigation, according to reports.

Shawmut Bank first notified the FBI of suspicious transactions by Mr. Regan earlier this month after the U.S. Trust Company, another Boston bank, became suspicious of a wire transfer of $580,000 made by Mr. Regan July 2.

Mr. Regan had requested the transfer of funds from an account he had opened at U.S. Trust in the name of Winter Investment Corp. to a personal account he had opened in his own name at Sun Bank, in Naples, Fla.

Investigation by Shawmut Bank disclosed six other accounts that were allegedly opened by Mr. Regan under other names.

The FBI executed a search warrant at Mr. Regan's Salem Street home on Tuesday, July 9, but did not reveal whether anything pertinent to the investigation was found there.

Other family members listed as living at the Salem Street home include Mr. Regan's wife, Julie, and four children. The Regans also own a home in

New Hampshire, according to a published report.

If convicted on the charge, Mr. Regan faces a maximum penalty of a $1 million fine and/or 20 years imprisonment. The case is being prosecuted by the U.S. Attorney's office in Boston.

Working on a lively downtown

Andover's downtown merchants are beginning to think like unified store-owners in a mall. That's good news because unless they give consumers a good reason to spend their dollars downtown, people will drive to malls where they can park and where a whole variety of stores exist, and make their purchases there.

When Andover's downtown is alive with shoppers, walkers, lookers, dog- and children-walkers, that's when we like the downtown the best. In order to keep people coming back to the downtown, the merchants will have to provide reasons for shoppers to return.

Roughly 50 merchants showed up at a 7:30 a.m. meeting yesterday, a meeting where store owners addressed unity of downtown stores. That's progress right there, because in the past, it seemed impossible to get that many merchants into one room at the same time. Perhaps the recession has owners worried enough to get active. We hope so.

At the same time, there is other good news about Andover's downtown. The story on page one indicates new business is coming here, and that means people have done their homework and decided that this downtown is a location where they can sell their wares.

There are other businesses that are still researching coming to this downtown.

We envision a day when all the stores are full, when Andover's downtown is bursting with a good variety of stores, a downtown that's as lively as the rest of this community, a business district that offers jugglers, story-tellers, school choruses performing and other happenings. That's a healthy picture and it will take energy on the part of merchants to make it reality.

Justin LoRusso did his homework

By Perry Catiin

I just have to mention Justin LoRusso's work last week on the Townsmen's Family Reading Program. The task last week was to pretend that you have found $500, along with a note that says: "The finder may keep this money, but only if they spend it on items or services they can find in this newspaper."

So Justin, who lives at 8 Dumbarton St., spent a little money. He purchased 10 tarts at the Butler's Pantry; he bought MacDraw software at Discount Computer, animation art at Kogon Gallery, a pizza at the Depot House of Pizza, a camera from Royal Jewelers, and some toys at New England Stores ($126.01 on the latter). Sounds like fun!

Every week, we draw from a hat the names of three children and they win a Rex and Rita T-shirt for participating in the Townsmen's Family Reading Challenge. The contest runs through Aug. 15, at which time the name of every child who has participated in the Andover challenge will have his name sent to the national contest. Winners of that contest receive a home computer, plus a computer for his or her school.

It's fun to talk with the kids who come in our office each week to pick up their T-shirts. We ask them what they are reading and we get a variety of answers. Some kids are reading two newspapers, plus books and magazines.

We had a phone call from a police man who didn't want to be identified, after last week's paper came out. He said he won't call our newspaper a rag if we won't call police officers cops.

In a way we've been waiting for this complaint. We wondered if police officers are offended by the word "cop." We certainly didn't mean anything derogatory by its use.

Certainly it fits well in headlines.

Our understanding is "cop" stands for "constable on duty." So we apologize if we offended you. And we will try to avoid the word in the future. But it does fit so well in headlines...

Karen Day, a nurse at Winchester Hospital, very kindly spent an hour with our staff last week, teaching us the Heimlich choke-saving method. By the end of the demonstration, most of us were quite frightened by the idea of someone choking. But we also are glad to have some guidance, should it happen. We were interested to hear her say that the hospital is busy almost every night giving CPR lessons. It's encouraging that people want to be prepared to help.

Ms. Day told us that because of the Good Samaritan Law we can't be held liable if we try to save someone who is choking and that person dies. Besides, she assures us that this method works.

Check page 8 in today's Townsmen. There's a story of a woman who works at the Andover Marriott who saved an employee who was choking. The woman received an award from the Marriott Corporation.

Victim thanks Andover police

Editor, Townsmen:

Att: Chief James Johnson

On Wednesday, June 19, I was attending a meeting at Christ Church in Andover. Some time between 8 and 9 p.m., my pocketbook was taken from the kitchen.

After a thorough search of the area, I called the Andover Police Department. Officer William Canane responded. It was immediately apparent that he was concerned and he proceeded to ask questions of myself and others. He walked through the entire building with me and around the outside with a light several times.

After finding a piece of paper with an address that I had put in my purse about 8 p.m. that night, he became curious as to why he had not seen it previously when he had shone his light on the window well - which was otherwise clear of any debris. He became more intense in his search and questioning and everyone present was impressed with his professionalism and attention to what must be a routine call.

After determining he had exhausted all avenues, we returned to the police station where he encouraged me to call all my credit card companies as well as the Chelmsford Police Department to alert them that my house keys had been taken along with all my ID.

It is very unsettling to find yourself in this situation. While it is a minor incident for most police departments today, it is still traumatic for the individual involved.

I will be forever grateful to Officer Canane for his caring and support on that very tense evening. Andover is fortunate to have a person of his caliber to serve the community.

Parent doesn't have $357 for school bus fee

Editor, Townsmen:

As a single parent of three children who lives 1.8 miles from our neighborhood school, I do not have $357 to pay for busing July 26, nor could I afford it in one lump sum after that date.

I strongly oppose this policy for several reasons but primarily for the safety issues it forces. The thought of the traffic congestion on and around school property twice a day, caused by the many parents like myself who will not be paying a bus fee, makes me very nervous. The superintendent of schools is asking us to commit to paying for busing by July 26, with no idea of where our children's bus stops will be until long after we have paid our fee.

The guidelines state that no bus stop will be more than one mile from the child's property line. Am I honestly being asked to pay $357 to put my children (one of whom will be entering kindergarten) on a bus to which they may have to walk a mile?

Surely there could have been another way to generate the uncertain amount of revenue this policy was created to generate. I sincerely hope this policy will be reviewed again with the primary focus on its safety and practicality.

In the meantime I will be driving my children to school each day and praying for the safety of all of our children throughout the coming school year.

She thanks the Wish family for sharing

Editor, Townsmen:

I would like to compliment the Townsmen on some of your new initiatives such as the reader surveys and the 60+ series, as well as more in-depth coverage of town issues.

I particularly liked Lisa Boudreau's article in the July 11 issue on the schools' special needs services that highlighted one young child, Adam Wish.

My daughter was in Adam's kindergarten class this past year. From her stories and from my observations as a classroom volunteer, I must say that having Adam mainstreamed into a regular classroom was a positive experience not just for him but for the other children as well.

I'm not sure it could have worked so well without the exceptional talent of their teacher, Ellen Day, the support of the special needs program, or with a larger class size.

Next year there will be larger classes and less special needs support. (And the school system almost lost Mrs. Day to budget cuts!) We must all realize that behind the facts and numbers of the town's budget are real people, and we need to be shown the human dimension of issues that may not directly affect us. I would like to thank you and Wish family for providing that insight.

Dismayed Vicor may expand

Editor, Townsmen:

I am dismayed that our zoning board is seriously considering allowing Vicor Inc. to double its size despite the fact that re-zoning the land in question on Osgood and Frontage Road was soundly defeated at Town Meeting just two months ago. Apparently the board has the right to circumvent the will of the majority by granting a zoning variance on residential property. The reasons for the defeat of rezoning were sound and clear and nothing has changed in two months.

I personally am concerned about traffic issues in the area. In 1987, a traffic problem was recognized and documented - traffic has only increased since then.

Traffic is particularly heavy in the morning and late afternoon when people are going to and from work and children are going to and from school. There are no sidewalks which makes pedestrians very vulnerable, especially on Osgood, a narrow and winding road.

The fact is that the Osgood Street area is a residential community bordered upon by an industrial area. The zoning board ought to protect the well-being of the residents of Andover and uphold the intent of the vote at Town Meeting.

Don't bypass the voters

Editor, Townsmen:

Citizens of Andover:

As a group representing taxpayers, we are always concerned when dangerous precedent-setting proposals come before our community leaders, whether at the state or local level.

One of the recent concerns in the 1991-'92 state budget was the provision regarding an "overlay" provision. This provision would have drastically changed Proposition 2 1/2 and allowed city and town officials to once again raise property taxes at their whim, without voter approval.

Even to those familiar with local budgets and Proposition 2 1/2, this proposal has been a difficult one to understand. We will briefly try to explain what the "overlay" account is and what changes would have occurred under this proposal.

The overlay account is a budget line item that is used to avoid fractions in the tax rate and to account for potential tax abatements that may be granted during the fiscal year. Currently, it is included as part of the annual budget and must be funded through the current tax rate, which is limited through Proposition 2 1/2.

The overlay provision would remove funding for this line item from the annual levy limit, currently limited by Proposition 2 1/2. City or town officials would still have to fund this line item, but would fund it through additional taxation that would be imposed through property taxes in the form of an increase to the levy limit.

In the most simplistic of terms, cities and towns could, in effect by administrative decision, "override" Proposition 2 1/2 without approval from the citizens. To remove the voters from the process, which is exactly what this proposal would do, would be a terrible mistake. When cities and towns had unlimited powers of taxation (before Proposition 2 1/2 was instituted in 1980), Massachusetts property taxes were 80 percent above the national average. They are still 29 percent above the national average.

Cities and towns already have an option to raise property taxes if they so desire. It's called an override. Any city or town can ask its voters, at any time, to increase property taxes by an amount they deem reasonable. Though most overrides have been defeated (as was Andover's recently), many have passed. Overrides have passed only when the communities have presented organized, reasonable justifications for an increase in taxes.

It would be dangerous and inappropriate to allow cities and towns to increase taxes without voter approval. Gov. Weld has vetoed this proposal. We hope that our state representatives and senators will uphold the governor's veto and continue to allow the people to have a say in their local governments.

HISTORY

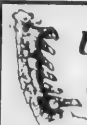

Local historian Ruth Sharpe will give a gallery talk on the exhibit "Keeping Cool," Wednesday, July 24, at the Andover Historical Society's noontime program. Join us for lunch in the side lawn by the Marjorie Stearns Memorial Garden, which is maintained by the Andover Garden Club. Bring your own lunch. Lemonade and cookies will be provided. There is a small admission fee.

Fans will be one of the topics discussed. There are folding fans, feather fans, fixed fans, circular, advertising, children's, courting or flirting fans; wedding, mourning, ball, college, graduation, church, political and on and on. There is a great variety of motion to make use of in the flutter of a fan: an angry flutter, modest flutter, confused flutter, merry flutter, amorous flutter, to name a few. It is said that the art of playing the fan cannot really be learned. A woman should have a natural grace for gesturing with her fan or she will always look awkward.

At the end of the 18th century a lady in London started an academy for training young women in the use of the fan. During this time women paid particular attention to the care of their hands. Well-cared-for and perfumed hands were considered one of the greatest charms of a beautiful woman and the use of the fan was one of the finest ways of drawing attention to them.

Soon books were written to teach a young lady the proper use of her fans. The Original Fanology or Ladies Conversation Fan by Charles Badine was published in London in 1797. It gave directions as to how to carry on a silent conversation by the use of the fan. Two examples: placing a shut fan near the heart means that you have won a person's heart and resting a shut fan on the right eye asks when you will be allowed to see the person in view.

Ms. Sharpe plans a talk on other items in the "Keeping Cool" exhibit and invites anyone interested in keeping cool. The Andover Historical Society at 97 Main St. is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Wednesday evenings until 8:30. Call 475-2236 for more information.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

FIELD OF DREAMS (AND PAIN)

Warmer weather often encourages people to ignore their routine responsibilities in favor of the more recreational pursuits of sports and other outdoor activities. Unfortunately, all too many outdoor enthusiasts allow their hearts to guide them to places where their bodies are not ready to follow. After many months away from the field or lake, it may be asking a bit much to expect one's muscles, tendons, and ligaments to suddenly accommodate themselves to the rigors of waterskiing or the swing of a softball bat. Many, in fact, find it hard to simply rise from their knees after tending the garden. Those who find themselves in such unaccustomed positions would do well to consult the doctor of chiropractic for "before" conditioning and "after" treatment.

Chiropractic can help to prevent pain, stress, illness, etc., as well as treat the causes. We offer you and your family total care without the use of drugs or surgery. Call us at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. Our office is located at 15 Central St.

P.S. The chiropractor can recommend stretches and exercises geared to specific sports and activities.

Demi Moore cover sells out in some stores here

The August issue of Vanity Fair magazine, which sports a nude picture of a very pregnant Demi Moore on the cover, is giving birth to high sales of the publication.

"It's all sold out," Fran Tilley, an employee at the Andover Spa on Elm Street, said Tuesday night. "They came in yesterday."

The magazine's cover features the eight months pregnant Ms. Moore, who starred in Ghost and who is married to actor Bruce Willis, full bellied and full breasted from baby bulge up, with just her hands covering herself.

Ms. Tilley sold the Spa's last issue of the magazine Tuesday afternoon to a woman who, according to the clerk, "thought it was tastefully done."

"It wasn't bad," Ms. Tilley said. "I saw it. It's a pregnant lady. Better looking than most pregnant ladies, but..."

Mike Norton, a manager at DeMoulas Market Basket in Shawsheen Plaza, said his store received a bundle of 20 copies of the magazine Monday and they also sold out.

"They were gone in a day," Mr. Norton said.

He said the magazine's cover is not exposed, but is covered with white paper with the actresses name on it and the whole magazine is wrapped in plastic.

Still, he and the other employees at the store have heard several comments on it from customers.

"Some customers of ours are saying they didn't like it," Mr. Norton said. "But more people said they liked it, that it is very beautiful."

The photo was published in the Boston Herald last week, the Boston Globe this week and has been broadcast on television.

CVS/Pharmacy just got its shipment of Vanity Fair Tuesday and had only sold "a couple," and employees had not heard any unusual comments, by Tuesday evening, according to Marybeth LaPorte, an employee at the store.

If you are looking for a copy, better hurry.

Amie Wilmer - Female Athlete of the Year

By Rick Harrison

Amie Wilmer remembers when it wasn't quite so easy.

"When I was seven I played soccer for a team called the Hawks. But one day I got hit in the nose with the ball and decided not to play any more."

As recently as five years ago things hadn't improved much.

"I was on the field hockey team as an eighth grader at Doherty (Middle School). I think I got five minutes playing time all year. I sure wasn't a star. (Lack of) coordination was definitely a factor. I also ran track but my best time in the mile was about seven-and-a-half minutes."

Amie talks about the "bad times" with the same upbeat approach and enthusiasm she brings to describing her subsequent outstanding athletic career at Phillips Academy.

Her metamorphosis from awkward second stringer to varsity gazelle reached an impressive apex last month when the resident of 28 Phillips St. in Andover was named recipient of PA's prestigious Abbott Athletic Award as the school's "Female Athlete of the Year."

Arguably one of the finest three-sport standouts in the school's history, Amie will be missed next year by the Big Blue field hockey, indoor track and girls' lacrosse teams as this attractive athlete takes her skills to Haverford College near Philadelphia.

Although she played the aforementioned soccer as a youth and in middle school while growing up in Andover, the Phillips graduate didn't put it all together until she arrived at PA.

As a freshman she began to show promise in field hockey and lacrosse, but also spent the winter semester struggling through the ice hockey season.

"The hockey coach created a 'line

Amie Wilmer set a new course record during this 8-mile road race in Stowe, Vt. She beat the old record by 2 minutes for her age group.

4B' designed especially for me because I was so bad," recalled Amie with a laugh.

"The summer after my freshman year I decided athletics was something I wanted to be good at."

Role models

She had some role models who offered gentle advice and encouragement.

Her father Henry, a Phillips graduate now a French instructor and Dean of Residence at his alma mater, is a top New England competitive cyclist.

Older brother Bo, 20, a PA graduate who will enter his sophomore year at Middlebury, Vt. College in the fall, was a standout soccer player (team captain), wrestler and lacrosse player at Phillips who continued in soccer and lacrosse at college.

And Amie's aunt, Molly Terry of North Carolina, is a professional triathlete who regularly participates in Ironman competitions throughout the country.

The Wilmer family traditionally spends the summer months in the small central Vermont town of Lincoln, where there is plenty of space and time to develop athletic skills.

"There isn't even a post office (in Lincoln)," noted Amie. "We live on the top of a mountain and the nearest person is several miles away."

"I started training on my own and with my aunt, varying the workouts and occasionally entering some road races."

The improvement her sophomore year was dramatic.

An intelligent switch was made from ice hockey to indoor track, and Wilmer competed on three varsity teams for the next three years.

"The track coach (John Strudwick) saw me running some drills during field hockey and asked me to run eight laps (two miles) to see if I had any potential," said Amie. "Since hockey was such a disaster I said 'hey, no problem' and I guess he liked what he saw."

Wilmer was a defensive specialist at center-back (midfielder) in field hockey, ran middle and long distance races (1,000, mile, 2-mile and an occasional relay) in track, and alternated at center-forward, attack wing and defensive wing in lacrosse.

Amie, who had toyed with the triple jump as a track performer at Doherty, couldn't pursue that event at PA because it isn't contested indoors. She did attempt to become a high jumper, but "it was too confusing," she explained. "I kept screwing up the steps. It was that old coordination problem again."

The Phillips Flash found track the hardest of the three sports. "It was tough for me personally because it required more thought and concentration. It was more difficult to keep the intensity level and live up to expectations."

And yet track is where her notoriety soared.

New England champ

As a sophomore she won a few races and was never lower than second. As a junior she went undefeated, and this past winter she lost just once to public school freshman phenom Jennifer Long of Chelmsford High.

Because few private schools have girls' indoor track teams, the bulk of the Phillips dual meets were against public schools (including Andover High which beat PA). Archrival Exeter has a team, however, and that meet is always the highlight of the season.

As a sophomore Wilmer won "Inter-

Summer league basketball team wins ULowell Shootout

The Andover summer league basketball team won the second annual University of Lowell Shootout championship recently, topping the 16-town field which included representatives from throughout the state and southern New Hampshire.

The Andover team, run by next year's varsity captains Sean Ryan, Chris Shea and Kevin Ring, opened with a 69-59 victory Bishop Guertin.

The locals then eliminated Salem, N.H. 73-53 in the quarter-finals, Lowell 77-66 in the semi-finals and state Division 2 scholastic power Acton-Boxboro 75-64 in the title showdown.

Sean Ryan averaged 25 points per game and was chosen Most Valuable Player of the tourney, while Shea (18-point average) and Ring (15-point average) were selected to the tournament All-Star squad.

Other players who contributed to the championship effort were Mike Pettoruto, Kirk Stockwood, Dave Gardner, Steve Shepard, Wayne Mattola, Mark Lastrina, Gene Doran, Ed Jurdi, John Donovan, Brian Landry, Bob McKertich, Adam Ferry, Steve Marchlik and J.J. McCormick.

Gold improves record to 4-5

By Rick Harrison

Andover Gold of the Suburban Pony League turned its season around last week by winning three of four games, improving to 4-5 overall with victories over Winthrop (3-0), Wilmington (8-5) and a wild one at Lynnfield's expense (12-11).

The North Andover Chiefs kept it from being a complete four-game sweep, however, hanging on for a 3-2 victory.

The Gold is now preparing for a busy weekend as it hosts the Reading Rockets tomorrow night (6 p.m.), travels to Winthrop Saturday at 4 p.m. for a makeup game, and battles intra-town rival Andover Blue in their lone regular-season meeting Sunday afternoon.

Andover Gold, 3-0

Lean and mean Matt Marvin (2-1) came within a whisker of a no-hitter, but settled for a masterful one-hit shutout with four walks and six strikeouts in the triumph over Winthrop at Andover High.

AG collected all the runs necessary in the bottom of the first when leadoff batter Danny Hansberry walked, stole second and scored on Tom Tanin's single. Subsequent walks to Jeff Brammer and Sam McLellan loaded the bases for Rick Mendez, who responded with a run-scoring single.

Unfortunately Mendez suffered a broken bone in the growth plate on his left ankle a few days later during a routine practice session, and he will be lost to the team for the balance of the season.

Gold added an insurance run in the fifth as Pat Walsh reached on an error, Brian Schols" in the mile and 2-mile, while her junior and senior years she was the New England Interscholastic Private School champion in both the mile and 1,000 yard run.

Her personal best time in the 1,000 is a school-record 2:50.0 and in the mile 5:25.0.

In field hockey Amie was mainly responsible for preventing goals — not scoring them — and she did that well while often marking (shadowing) the best offensive player on the other team.

Lacrosse gave Amie a chance to drive opposing defenses crazy, which she also did with regularity by scoring 27 goals last spring and more than 50 over three years.

She was team MVP in all three sports this year, and every team she played on at PA finished with a winning record.

Her junior year Coach Kathy Henderson's field hockey team was 15-2, losing only to St. Paul's during the regular season and to Hotchkiss in sudden-death overtime in the New England Prep-Private Tournament semifinals.

Coach Strudwick's indoor track squad won a New England Prep School championship during Amie's tenure, while Coach Henderson's lacrosse team did not capture a major title.

She was captain of all three sports this year as a senior, "Athlete of the Term" four consecutive semesters, winner of the Phil Allen Award for Athletic Merit as a junior, and the Abbott recipient just prior to graduation June 3.

Biggest thrill

"The Abbot Award was the biggest thrill I had athletically at Phillips," said Amie, who was born in Methuen but has been a lifelong Andover resident except for a year spent in France.

"It summed up everything I had accomplished there. Even though only a few of us (girls) could realistically have won the award, I honestly never expected it."

In addition to her athletic feats, Amie frequently made the honor roll at PA and was a leader of the noted Blue Key campus organization which helps plan many school activities.

Haverford College, a Quaker school located in a Philadelphia suburb of the same name 10 minutes outside the City of Brotherly Love, won out over Middlebury, Princeton, Hamilton and Bucknell which were also on the Wilmer list of serious considerations.

Athletically Haverford is a Division 3 school, and Wilmer was recruited basically in lacrosse and field hockey which are her first priorities.

"I picked Haverford because I like the people, the location and the size (a small student body of 1,100)," she noted.

Amie is intrigued by languages and she intends to major in Russian, which she studied four years at PA under the inspired tutelage of department head Victor Svec. She hopes to eventually study in the Soviet Union as well.

"Then I'd like to come back to Phillips as a teaching fellow and lacrosse coach," she said.

Teaching definitely is in her blood because Amie's mother Susan is also an instructor at Belmont Hill.

For six more weeks Amie will continue to enjoy the solitude of Lincoln.

"I'm really a homebody," she says. "But, in addition to running I wait tables, read cheap novels and lift weights."

All three of those summertime 'hobbies' deserve further explanation.

"I don't really read cheap novels," she laughed. "I just happened to pick up a Danielle Steele book at the store by mistake the other day."

No 'Terminator'

"And I lift weights, but I'm not a 'house' (Amie Schwarzenegger?) or anything like that. I'm not a bodybuilder. I do it to keep muscle tone."

Amie is a well-proportioned 5'7", 120-pounder with blond hair and hazel eyes "that keep changing color."

The waitress job is eight hours a day, five days a week at Mister Up's Restaurant in nearby Middlebury.

"I worked in the kitchen for three years, but now that I'm 18 I can wait tables," explained Amie.

Phillips Academy's loss is Haverford's gain, and undoubtedly the sports pages haven't seen the last of Andover's talented

Jacobson throws no-hitter to lead seniors to victory

By Rick Harrison

Milestone performances by Ryan Jacobson and Frank Morris sparked the Andover Senior 14-15 year old Little League All-Stars to a pair of victories in District 14 Tournament play, Jacobson throwing the tourney's first no-hitter in a 16-1 rout of Lowell Highland and Morris driving in seven runs with four hits in an 18-13 triumph over Lowell Gallery.

Those wins left Andover at 3-1 in the double-elimination tournament, setting up a semifinal battle with Billerica National (3-1) last Tuesday night to determine who will advance to this evening's championship round against undefeated Tewksbury American (3-0).

If Andover beat Billerica, which edged Tewksbury National 4-2 after dramatic extra-inning decisions over Chelmsford Fitts (10-9, 13 innings) and Chelmsford Lupien (7-6, nine innings), it will square off against Tewksbury American tonight at Hadley Field in Lowell (5:45 p.m.).

Andover Blue 11 - Methuen 2

Matt Wolcott's three-hit pitching performance led Blue to its sixth win of the year. Brian Tisbert finished the game to preserve the win over the last two innings.

Wolcott started off the six-run second inning with a walk and moved to second base on a passed ball. Jeff Lembo's bunt single sent Matt to third base. Pete Murphy, two for two with two runs scored, drove in his first by drilling a shot to centerfield to move Jeff to third. Rob Derba drove in the next run with a fielder's choice. Alex Marshall walked and Chris O'Connell had a two-run double. Todd Harris singled O'Connell to third and stole second base. Chris Sintros' fielder's choice scored O'Connell and Paul Allard was two for three with two RBIs, singled Todd home.

Best friends raise $600 to help fight MS

By Lisa Boudreau

Three of the youngest bike riders in the June 22 and 23 Great Mass Getaway, a 150-mile bike ride to benefit Multiple Sclerosis, were 14-year-old best friends from Andover, Mark Adams, Paul DiFranco and David Lipman. Together they raised more than $600 for MS.

MS is a chronic disease of the central nervous system, which usually strikes adults between the ages of 20 and 40. Researchers haven't established a cause for the disease and a cure is not known at this time either, according to the Massachusetts Chapter of the National MS Society.

A total of 1,300 cyclists rode in the seventh annual Massachusetts Getaway and raised $320,000 to benefit MS.

"We rode together almost the whole way. We're better than beginners, somewhere between that and advanced riders, but we all complained about the same thing at the end of the race. Our backs hurt at the end," Mark said.

He said he and his friends chose the race not only because they wanted to raise money for charity by doing something they love, cycling, but also because the MS races are "very safe and well organized."

David Lipman, on the left, Paul DiFranco and Mark Adams of Andover get ready to start the 150-mile bike ride to raise money for the Massachusetts Multiple Sclerosis Society. Together they raised more than $600 for the society.

The three friends were just part of a group of 16 Andover residents who rode in the race. The 150-mile tour began in Haverhill and went to Durham, N.H., where they stayed overnight at the University of New Hampshire. Overall, Mark said the ride took five and one-half hours.

Other riders from Andover included: Linda Kessler, Beth Schwedler, Scott Tobias, Brett Amundsen, Craig Carison, Dermot Cavanaugh, Christine Chevard, Jeanne Cosgrove, Moira Kiley, John McLaughlin, Bruce Moody, Frank Silva and Mike Smith.

Barbara Hickey and other Pirates swim at meet

The Merrimack Valley Pirate swim team competed in the Seacoast Swimming Association's Age Group Qualifier meet at Dover, N.H. last weekend. Several Pirates made cut times for the New England Age Group championships while many more placed in their events.

In the 15-18 age group, Sheri Beck made cuts in the 200-meter breaststroke and placed fourth in the 100-meter breaststroke and sixth in the 400-meter individual medley. John Fischer was sixth in the 100-meter butterfly.

Barbara Hickey qualified in the 400-meter freestyle and 100-meter fly and was first in the 200 and 400 I.M.s, third in the 200 free and sixth in the 100 free. Wendy Mooney made age group cuts in the 400 I.M. and was fourth in the 200 free.

Reed Newland added a cut in the 200-meter butterfly and finished third in the 100 fly and fifth in the 200 I.M. while Kristen Perrault qualified in the 400 free.

Stephanie St. Onge was third in the 100-meter backstroke and Jennifer Sheehan qualified in the 100-meter breaststroke and was first in the 200-meter breaststroke.

Pee Wee A hockey wraps up season with 49 wins

The Andover Pee Wee A hockey team just completed a successful season. Playing against top teams in two tough leagues the team compiled a 49-24-5 record. There were several highlights during the year. Over Christmas, the Pee Wees won the Concord, N.H., International Tournament against teams from Connecticut,

New Hampshire and Maine. Their exciting 3-2 win over Central Connecticut won the tourney. In March, The A's represented the district at the state tournament being one of 16 teams in the state to qualify. The Pee Wees were also the runner up at this year's annual Andover Cup. In regular season play Andover finished second to Arlington by only one point in the Dual State League. In this league the team compiled a 14-5-1 record. In the Valley League the A's finished third with a 12-7-3 record. In the playoffs, Andover lost 6-5 to Triton in the semifinals. Triton

Junior All-Stars finish tourney play

The Andover Little League Junior 13-year-old All-Stars had a regrettably short District 14 Tournament run.

After losing its opening game to Lowell Callery, Andover advanced with a 1-0 forfeit victory over Lowell Highland which dropped out after a 13-0 first-round loss.

In a loser's bracket quarterfinal last Sunday, Billerica eliminated Andover 14-1 behind lefty pitcher Ryan Torpey's four-hitter.

Glenn Magnan led the Billerica assault with four hits and five RBI while Brian White, Bob MacCormack and Torpey contributed two safeties apiece.

Wolcott leads Andover Blue

Derba's third-inning single drove in Murphy who had walked and stolen second base.

In the seventh Jason Caverly singled to load the bases with Dana McCann, who reached on an error, and Marshall, who was hit by a pitch. A double play scored one run and Sintros, who went three for five with two RBIs, singled in the last run.

High Quattlebaum played good defense at second base as did Justin Connors behind the plate.

Andover Blue 12 - North Andover 3

Multi-hit games by Todd Harris, Paul Allard, Jeff Lembo and Pete Murphy and eight stolen bases paced Blue to an easy win.

With Blue leading 1-0 in the second inning, winning pitcher Murphy's two-run single drove in Lembo and Chris Sintros who had back-to-back singles and stolen bases. In the third inning, Allard, three for three with two runs scored, drove in his first run with a single that sent home Chris O'Connell who had tripled after a Matt Wolcott fielder's choice. Lembo's single brought Allard home for a 5-1 lead.

Blue's seven-run fourth inning put the game out of reach. Todd Harris dumped a change-up into right field and stole second. Dana McCann walked. Allard singled in Harris but a throwing error by the centerfield to third base allowed McCann to score with Allard moving to third base. Wolcott's single to leftfield scored Allard. A Lembo single and Sintros reaching on an error loaded the bases to set the stage for Murphy's second two-run RBI single. Harris' second single of the inning scored Murphy who had moved to second on an Alex Marshall walk.

Jacobson's no-hitter leads seniors to win

tonight, and another triumph in a winner-take-all championship game Saturday at 1 p.m. at Hadley.

Regardless of what happened Tuesday night the Andover Seniors, coached by John Baker and Dan Moynihan, have played with great hustle and desire throughout a tournament that has seen them ring up 55 runs and bang out 62 hits in the first four games.

Andover, 16-1

Leftlander Ryan Jacobson, who uses a wicked sidearm delivery, dazzled Lowell Highland to such an extent that the only two fair balls hit out of the infield came on the final two flyouts of the game.

Jacobson was in complete control from beginning to end as he struck out seven, walked only three, retired the last nine batters he faced, set down 18 of the last 19 and threw only 94 pitches.

Jacobson faced only 24 batters as his teammates played errorless ball behind him.

The victory was the second of the tourney for the slick southpaw, who also went the distance with a seven-hitter as Andover opened with an 11-5 win over Lowell Callery in extra innings.

It was also the first no-hitter of the 14-year-old's baseball career.

Highland actually took a 1-0 first-inning lead as leadoff batter Jason Sun walked, stole second, took third on a wild pitch and scored on a balk.

The only other Lowell baserunners were Dave Duggan and Joe Machado, who drew leadoff walks in the second and fifth frames.

Jacobson helped himself with four assists off the mound, while shortstop Dave Charland handled three grounders, second baseman Ryan Moynihan two and third baseman Nate Roberts one.

First baseman Frank Morris snagged a pair of pop-ups, and Damon Bellorado played first the final two innings and saved a low one-hop throw in the dirt to get the first out of the seventh inning.

While Frank Morris finally cooled off, following back-to-back four-hit games, the offense was led by leadoff batter Mike McGuire and Ryan Moynihan.

McGuire smacked three hits, including a pair of doubles, and was one of seven players with one RBI.

Moynihan laced two singles and was the only multiple-RBI man with two.

Other run-scoring safeties were stroked by Jeff Pothier, Matt Blake, Mike Mano, Jacobson and Bellorado.

Pothier was a nuisance on the bases once again, stealing twice and scoring three runs, while McGuire, Jacobson, Charland and Morris scored twice each.

Highland committed six errors to hand Andover seven unearned gift runs against the three Lowell pitchers.

The locals took a 4-1 lead in the second when Morris was hit by a pitch, Pothier smacked a one-out infield single off the shortstop's glove, Mike Mano drew a two-out walk, two runs scored when Dave Charland's grounder produced a throwing error, and Mike McGuire doubled home Charland.

In the third Jacobson singled, Morris walked, Jeff Pothier reached on a fielder's choice erasing Jacobson at third, Moynihan smacked an RBI single, and Pothier scored on the same play when the Highland centerfielder overthrew the cutoff man.

Andover sent 10 batters to the plate in the six-run fourth, building the lead to 12-1.

Charland reached on an infield error, McGuire banged his second double, Charland scored on a wild pitch, and Matt Blake singled home McGuire. Blake took second on a wild pitch and was rescued by a Jacobson single.

Jeff Pothier drew a two-out walk, Ryan Moynihan's infield hit plated Jacobson, Pothier pranced home on a wild pickoff throw, and Mike Mano's crisp single to centerfield rescued Moynihan with the final run of the stanza.

In the fifth Mike McGuire singled, Adam Gray walked, Jacobson walked and Frank Morris had an RBI fielder's choice.

In the seventh Gray led with a single to centerfield, Jacobson greeted the third Highland pitcher (Dave Duggan) by drawing a walk, Damon Bellorado rapped a run-scoring single with Jacobson also coming home on a throwing error. Bellorado ended up on third and scored the final marker on a wild pitch.

Andover, 18-13

It wasn't an artistic masterpiece, but the come-from-behind 18-13 triumph over Lowell Callery at Hadley Field in Lowell was enough to keep the Andover Seniors alive and kicking.

Righthander Damon Bellorado emerged from behind the plate, where he is usually stationed, to battle the distance on the mound. He struck out four.

The victory was the second of the tournament against Calley, which also fell to Andover 11-5 in eight innings during first round play.

Andover jumped ahead 3-0 in the bottom of the first when Mike McGuire singled, Matt Blake singled, sizzling Frank Morris lashed a two-run single, and a Callery error produced the third run.

Lowell nicked Bellorado for a single run in the second, and then exploded for six in the third inning to jump ahead 7-3.

Andover regained the lead (8-7) with five runs in the fourth.

Dave Charland walked, Ryan Moynihan walked, Blake ripped an RBI single, and later in the inning two-run singles were added by Morris and Jeff Pothier.

Callery bounced back ahead 10-8 with three runs in the top of the fifth, but Andover retaliated with six in the bottom half to make it 14-10.

Once again tablesetters Charland and Moynihan drew walks, run-producing singles were stroked by McGuire, Blake and Morris, and ultimate reserve Mike Mano came through in a pinch-hitting role as he rapped a three-run double.

Never-say-die Callery notched its last three runs in the sixth, closing the gap to 14-13, but Andover padded the lead with four insurance runs in the home half before the game was called because of darkness.

In the sixth Ryan Moynihan drew his third walk, Blake walked, Ryan Jacobson singled, and Frank Morris cleared the bases with a three-run triple that reached the 385-foot sign on the stone wall in left on one bounce.

Morris finished the evening with four hits (nine in four games), seven RBI and three runs scored.

Matt Blake laced three singles and scored four runs, leadoff batter Mike McGuire had two hits and scored four times, Dave Charland tripled, singled and scored twice, Mano doubled and Jeff Pothier had a single.

Bill Martel, who pitched into the fourth, was the eventual losing pitcher for Callery.

Contributing run-scoring hits along the way for Lowell were Raul Rodriguez, Dan Graham, Matt McCabe, Jeff Thomas, Andres Rivera, Juan Garcia, Brian Meagher and Martel.

Pee Wees wrap up season

eventually won the playoff title.

The goaltending was very capably handled by Peter Afarian and Jason Veilleux. Both had outstanding seasons but a couple of games stand out: a 1-0 win for Jason against Methuen in the States and the 3-2 over Central Connecticut for Pete. The team averaged only 2.89 goals against all year and only 20.15 shot against.

The defense played very well as the goals against average indicates, but this defensive corp was also excellent in moving the puck out of the zone and generating some offense. Led by Captain Brian Kwon and Assistant Captain Jeff Hesenius, the defensemen were Matt Trede, Andy Henderson, Eric Marquis and Brad Batchelder. Both Marquis and Batchelder acted as swingmen playing very well at forward when asked. Jeff Hesenius led the defensemen with 37 points, 11 goals and 26 assists, followed by Batchelder with 32 points, 14 goals and 18 assists.

Offensively this team could score as the goals for game average of 4.59 indicates. Despite missing 15 games the team's leading scorer was Captain Jeff Pothier with 183 points, 99 goals and 84 assists. Jeff had the most goals and most assists on the team. Next highest point setter was Assistant Captain and sniper Chris Cullen. Chris finished with 152 points, 90 goals and 62 assists. The other top scoring forwards were Chris Tedrich with 77 points, 37 goals, 40 assists; Todd Thistle, 58 points, 26 goals, 32 assists; and Al Kwon, 44 points, 24 goals, 20 assists. Ed Seero, once moved to the center, was the team's top defensive forward. Rob Kwon was an exceptional forechecker and came up with timely goals. Bill Kearins also had an excellent year and had a crucial goal in that 3-2 win over Central Connecticut. Ryan Martin, after starting out at defense, played hard at wing and had one four-goal game.

The team was composed of mostly second year players, but the four first-year players, Andy Henderson, Bill Kearins, Al Kwon, and Rob Kwon, made the step up from Squirts very capably. The line of Jeff Pothier, Chris Cullen and Todd Thistle is most likely the highest scoring line in Andover Hockey Association history with 393 points, 215 goals and 178 assists.

Chargers come up short in bid for regional championship

In a bid for the Eastern Regionals at Niagara Falls, N.Y., the Andover Chargers came up a point short at the Massachusetts Soccer Tournament of Champions held at U-Mass, Amherst over the June 29-30 weekend.

The Essex County U-14 girls champs lost a defensive struggle to Marshfield, 1-0, in the opening game of the round-robin format. Strong efforts were turned in by Stephanie Banos and Beth Murphy at halfback and by Christine Contos and Vanessa Scarbeau at the fullback position.

The Chargers forged to a 2-1 victory against Concord on goals by Jen Munroe,

Gold improves record

Flanagan walked, Tom Tanin walked and Walsh raced across on a wild pitch.

Winthrop's only serious threat came in the third when Marvin walked the bases loaded with one out.

Dave Kelmer ended the bid with a spectacular defensive play, snagging a flyball in centerfield for the second out and gunning down the Winthrop runner trying to tag up at third and score. Kelmer fired a strike to catcher Sam McLellan who applied the tag for the inning-ending doubleplay.

Matt Marvin had two hits, including a fourth-inning triple, but he was erased on a botched suicide squeeze attempt.

Pat Walsh also added a single, while joining Kelmer on the list of defensive standouts were Brian Flanagan at shortstop and Danny Hansberry at second base.

North Andover, 3-2
The Chiefs scored all three runs in the first two innings and managed to hold off Gold the rest of the way.

Dave Kelmer started on the mound and worked two innings, yielding just two hits but being victimized by poor fielding support.

Tim Caverly finished up and stymied North Andover on one hit over the final four frames. The righthander walked one, fanned four and didn't allow a run.

Gold notched both its runs in the third when Pat Walsh singled, stole second, Tom Boutureia walked, Dave Kelmer rapped an RBI double, and Danny Hansberry's infield out rescued Boutureia.

Jeff Hesenius then hit the ball on the nose, but lined out to third base to end the inning.

AG threatened in the fourth, sixth and seventh innings without scoring.

In the fourth Brian Flanagan reached on an error and Tom Tanin singled, but a strikeout and doubleplay enabled NA to escape.

In the sixth Flanagan spanked a two-out single, Tanin reached on an error, the pair pulled a double steal, but the next batter popped out.

In the seventh Paul Auffermann singled, stole second and continued to third on the catcher's overthrow. But, with no outs, Gold was frustrated after a tapper to the mound, missed squeeze and strikeout. On the squeeze Auffermann collided with the catcher, but the Chiefs' backstop held the ball for the all-important out.

Righthander Jeff Brammer led the defense with two fine catches, and he also threw out a North Andover runner at the plate. Jeff Hesenius was also sharp at catcher.

Andover Gold, 8-5

Gold spotted Wilmington a 5-0 lead in the third and then battled back for he victory, erupting for five runs in the fourth, one in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Righthander Pat Walsh (2-2) went the distance on the mound, permitting nine Wilmington hits, walking two and whiffing three.

Walsh was in control after the third, checking the visitors on three hits over the final four scoreless innings.

In the five-run AG fourth Walsh was safe on an error, Flanagan walked, Tom Tanin stroked an RBI single, Sam McLellan walked with the bases loaded to force home a run, Tom Boutureia ripped a two-run single and Tim Caverly tied it with an RBI single.

AG took the lead in the fifth as Flanagan singled, Tanin and McLellan walked to load the bases, and Dave Kelmer dropped a perfect suicide squeeze bunt.

Two insurance runs were added in the sixth when Danny Hansberry and Pat Walsh singled, Tanin was safe on an error and Jeff Hesenius drilled a two-run single.

Wilmington put two runners aboard in the seventh but couldn't score.

Caverly finished the contest with a double and single.

Kelmer had another fine defensive game in centerfield, making a diving catch and turning it into a doubleplay by throwing out a runner at third base.

Tom Boutureia played a strong game in rightfield, Brian Flanagan handled seven chances flawlessly at shortstop, and catcher Sam McLellan gunned down a would-be basestealer.

Andover Gold, 12-11

For the second game in a row Gold spotted the opponent a 5-0 lead, battled back to take an 11-5 advantage, squandered that as Lynnfield pulled even 11-11, and then won it with a run in the seventh.

The victory avenged an earlier 3-1 loss to Lynnfield.

Dave Kelmer continued his red-hot perfect 4-for-4 night two-way play with a at the plate.

assisted by Jennie Murnane, and a spectacular 30-yard shot off a free kick by Vanessa Blank.

Going into the final game, against eventual tournament winner Witman, the Chargers knew they had to win by two goals to advance to the semifinals. They almost pulled it off. With Witman dominating play, Munroe finished off two break-away goals set up by Abby Harris to give Andover a 2-0 lead 10 minutes into the second half. The outstanding play of goalie Meghan Lynch and sweeper Sue Cookson could not keep Witman off the scoreboard as Witman tallied on a direct free kick plus a penalty kick to send the Chargers home with a 2-2 tie.

The Chargers finished the season with a 14-2-3 record. The leading scorers were Jen Munroe with 17 goals and 6 assists, Abby Harris (11 and 5), Vanessa Blank (8 and 7) and Jennie Murnane (5 and 3). Meghan Lynch had a .83 goals against average to go with seven shutouts. Jen Schapira, Liz Salvia, Sue Cookson and Abby Harris were selected to play for the Essex County District U-14 girls team this summer.

BUSINESS PROFILES

Giant Glass in North Andover Giant Glass Co., Inc.

GIANT GLASS CO., is the primary installer of auto glass in the Merrimack Valley and the largest glass company based north of Boston. Owner Dennis Drinkwater's success necessitated opening a third facility in 1988, conveniently located in North Andover, with an expanded showroom and warehouse. Last spring GIANT GLASS celebrated their 15th year in business.

General Manager Guy Strazzere oversees a fleet of 14 trucks manned by experienced technicians who are skilled at replacing damaged windshields on site, at the customer's home or place of business. This service is especially important when a windshield is shattered, making the vehicle unsafe to drive. A phone call to GIANT GLASS is all that is needed. They deal directly with insurance companies. Mastercard and Visa are accepted.

Insurance inspections and etching for insurance purposes are two more new services offered. By having GIANT GLASS install an auto alarm, you can realize a 20 percent savings on your insurance.

GIANT GLASS has a full line of both standard and custom mirrors guaranteed to fit your needs as well as your budget. They also install store fronts of thermopane or plexiglass, commercial and industrial, interior applications, custom mirrors, furniture tops and tub enclosures. They repair storm sashes, storm doors and windows. Installation and repair of sunroofs on foreign and domestic cars, vans and trucks is also available.

GIANT GLASS has three locations: 598 Essex St., Lawrence; 1000 Osgood St. (Route 125), North Andover, and 950 Broadway St., Chelsea. They are open Monday through Saturday. Telephone (in Greater Lawrence area): 688-8211 or 1-800-54-GIANT.

groups for HIV infected clients and their families and loved ones and bereavement support.

Medical social workers deal with entire families to give emotional support and serve as a resource for finding alternative assistance. Private duty and homemaker services are also available.

Home health aides and nurses are a solution for finding peace of mind for care givers who sometimes must leave a homebound person alone, said Ms. Reiter.

The parent left behind

When Sandra Getgood's father died, she knew she wanted her mother, Gertrude Glenni, to live with her and her family in their Andover home. But, Mrs. Getgood works full time and couldn't be home during the day to ensure that her mother, who has been in failing health for quite some time, would get the care and supervision she needs.

"After my father died, my mother's health, which had been failing, became very poor. I knew a nursing home wasn't an option we wanted to consider at that time," she said.

Through their doctor the Getgoods learned about the VNA programs and the services HomeCare provides to help elderly people remain more independent.

"Violet (from HomeCare) comes in three times a week for two hours each day and helps Mom with whatever she needs. I can go to work secure in the knowledge that Mom's OK," she said.

'Now Mom's in control and it's very important that when people get older they retain the dignity they deserve.'

Mrs. Getgood said Violet has helped her mother regain some of the independence she lost when she moved in with her daughter. She said her mother's health varies from day to day and Violet may help or do all the cleaning of her mother's room. On days when she isn't feeling well, Violet may even help her dress and bathe.

"Violet helped alleviate some of the frustration for my mother. It's very difficult for someone who has always taken care of others to now be in a situation where she needs care," she said.

"Now, Mom's in control and it's very important that when people get older they retain the dignity they deserve," Mrs. Getgood said.

HomeCare Inc.

HomeCare Inc. is a private, non-profit agency that provides in-home care for those who are homebound or need extra care to remain safe and healthy in their homes. HomeCare clients pay privately for services in their home. HomeCare staffers work closely with the VNA and Hospice branches of the organization.

The majority of HomeCare clients are elderly people who may live alone, new mothers who need help with children and/or around their homes, handicapped people who live alone, people recently discharged from the hospital and rehabilitation facilities, and families needing assistance with dependent family members.

Twenty-four hour live-in care is available, as well as private duty licensed nursing.

Some help around home

Mary Hughes lives in an apartment in the Andover Commons complex on Railroad Street. She's 74 and she suffered a stroke a short while ago. She can no longer do all the things for herself she used to.

What she can't do, a VNA HomeCare worker does for her. Since December, a woman from HomeCare comes to her apartment and vacuums, dusts, cleans and then does her grocery and other shopping. Every other week the HomeCare aid takes Mrs. Hughes to the hair dresser.

"She is really a help because I can't go out by myself; I've had a stroke," she explained.

'Violet helped alleviate some of the frustration for my mother. It's very difficult for someone who has always taken care of others to now be in a situation where she needs care.'

"(Holly) is 21 years old and I like her very much. She's great company," Mrs. Hughes said.

Hospice for terminal patients

Merrimack Valley Hospice offers care for patients in the final stages of life. Once a diagnosis of any terminal illness has been made and treatment is beyond the curative stage, Hospice care may be considered.

Hospice offers emotional, spiritual as well as medical support to the patient and family. Hospice works closely with a patient's doctor to monitor appropriate care. Its goal is to help a patient remain at home with family and friends. Hospice is Medicare certified and is covered by many insurance and HMO agencies. When insurance doesn't cover all the costs, tax deductible contributions from individuals and memorial donations help the MV Hospice provide care for all patients who need it.
